Mendes-France Bids To Return To Power

Early Election Is Called

PARIS (Reuters)—Former Premier Pierre Mendes-France Tuesday fired the opening shot in his campaign to return to power at the head of a powerful left-wing coalition government.

He flayed Premier Edgar Faure's government for proposing a general election in December—seven months before the statutory time.

Faure's call for early elections was calculated to forestall Mendes-France's campaign to win voter support through the winter months for his program.

The former premier said in his new daily newspaper l'Express that the French people would "not allow themselves to be duped by the supreme expedient" of a snap election.

Mendes-France pointed to what he called France's series of international setbacks in the last week, including the repudiation of ex-emperor Bao Dai in Viet Nam, the anti-French vote in the Saar plebiscite and the native rebellions in French North Africa.

Need Change

He said the pro-German vote Sunday in the Saar "reminds us cruelly that only a complete change in politics and habits can save us from decadence."

Faure conferred with party leaders of his cabinet coalition and later told reporters he would not make the government's general policy a matter of a confidence vote.

This served as a blunt rejection of Mendes-France's demand for scrappying the December election plan.

Ironically, Faure and Mendes-France are leaders of the Radical party and worked closely together in Mendes-France's regime from June, 1954, until last March.

New Mandate

Officially, Faure sought to justify his call for early elections on the basis of the North African situation. He argued a new mandate is needed to enable parliament to take unpopular decisions such as sending more troops to North Africa.

Faure suffered one blow Tuesday night when Radical party deputies, his own party, decided almost unanimously they could agree to December elections only if changes were made in the electoral laws. This, in effect, would make elections this year impossible.

Another faction opposed to December elections argued that the Communist vote would jump because of the extreme unpopularity of the recent callup of reservists to serve in North Africa and the fear other groups may be called up early next year for the same purpose.

Mountbatten Tells Of Scheme To Build Huge Ice Airports In Nfld.

"Habakuk" Was Fantastic Wartime Plan

OTTAWA (C.P.)—Admiral Earl Mountbatten Tuesday recalled how he tossed the ingredient for "Habakuk" into the bathtub beside Sir Winston Churchill.

Habakuk was the secret Second World War scheme for building huge floating airfields from which to fly air cover for the invasion of France.

The plan called for building them in Newfoundland.

The ingredient was "pykerete," a mixture of pulp and seawater out of which the floating bases were to have been built. It was named after a man named Pyke on Mountbatten's staff who discovered it.

Earl Mountbatten, then chief of British combined operations and now first sea lord and chief of naval staff, related to the Canadian Club how he first said, because of the increasing production of long-range aircraft, the Azores provided the needed field in the Atlantic and the United States was building large numbers of aircraft carriers for use in the Pacific.

VIOLENT SALES TECHNIQUE

Earl Mountbatten then recounted how he tried to sell the plan to the British and American combined chiefs of staff at the 1943 Quebec conference.

He had a block of ice and a block of pykerete sent up to the suite where the chiefs of staff were in conference. Gen. Hap Arnold of the U.S. Air Force was invited to split them with an axe.

Gen. Arnold cracked the ice all right but jarred his arms and elbows trying to bust the pykerete.

Mountbatten then took his pistol and fired at both:

"The ice shattered. I then fired at the pykerete. The bullet jumped back and very nearly killed Air Marshal Portal. The staff outside thought the British and American chiefs of staff had started shooting at each other."

He said the fields would have been kept frozen by a refrigeration plant carried on them. It would have taken 60 or 70 torpedoes to damage one badly and they could have been easily repaired.

Earl Mountbatten said the scheme—sections of one field were actually constructed—met with far less derison than originally greeted Mulberry and Pluto, which were later carried out during the invasion of Normandy. Mulberry was the code name given the artificial port and Pluto the code word for oil pipelines laid under the English channel to France.

Britons Expect Tough Supplementary Budget

Spark Exports By Blunting Consumer Demand

By ARCH MacKENZIE

LONDON (C.P.)—R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today outlines "operation mopup" in his fifth budget, a supplementary one.

Before a Labor party opposition anxious to dig into what it considers a prime opportunity, Butler will announce the "series of economic measures" he considers necessary to absorb the excess pounds, shillings and pence responsible for Britain exceeding its means.

He is expected to blunt consumer demand and attempt to spark exports, with higher purchase tax on autos and other "luxury" commodities. He also is expected to set a good example by trimming the government's own spending.

Several targets have been picked in pre-budget speculation.

MAY TRIM DEFENCE

Defence, which takes one-third of government budgetting, already is under scrutiny. Food and agriculture subsidies, costing more than £300,000,000 annually, are others.

In housing, local authorities have been warned that some tenants in municipal housing estates can afford to pay more rent. This may mean the government, which has been encouraging the building of 300,000 or more dwelling units a year, may decide to concentrate on slum clearances.

Nationalized industries may feel the Butler pinch.

This budget is regarded as the toughest task the golden boy of the Conservative party has had since becoming chancellor four years ago.

LABOR CHARGE

The Labor party will charge that he used political means to electoral ends before last May's election by cutting sixpence from the income tax rate.

Responsible newspapers have been suggesting that it is a time for politically distasteful action if such is necessary to make the economy really firm.

Comments The Daily Telegraph, staunch Conservative newspaper: "At the beginning of its parliamentary life, the government should be concerned mainly, not with the summer's difficulties, but with the narrowness of the margin on which we operate: every puff of wind nearly capsizes the ship of state."

MAY CHANGE JOBS

A popular political rumor of the moment is that Butler will hand over the chancellorship when he can. One report is that he would like to preoccupy himself with an over-all domestic policy for the life of the present government.

What he has to say today just might be deduced from the lesson he read last Sunday at Greenstead Green church, Essex. He chose Ezekiel, 2, which says in part: "Be not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house. . . ."

Mystery Cargo Is Bell Buoy

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Two navy frogmen emerged from the harbor waters here Friday and announced a mystery object dragged from the sea in a fishboat's net was a wrecked bell buoy.

Divers Lieut. Maurice Tate and PO T. J. O'Neil from Stadacona naval base in Halifax spent 45 minutes taking a close look at the wreckage, scooped up off the northeast coast of Cape Breton Friday by the Glace Bay dragger Nelson Miles.

The frogmen said the disabled buoy apparently had been submerged for a long time. The dragger's crew towed the wreckage here before cutting it loose from their net. They thought they had picked up a wrecked aircraft.

Queen, Duke To Visit Africa

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will visit Nigeria from the end of January until the middle of February next year, it was announced at Buckingham Palace Tuesday night.

It will be the first visit to Nigeria by a reigning British sovereign.

The announcement added that the Queen hopes to visit other British territories in West Africa later.

The journey, in both directions, will probably be made by air. There are two international airports in Nigeria, at Lagos and Kano.

No detailed program for the visit has yet been fixed but the Queen and duke plan to spend three or four days at Lagos, the capital, and some time in each of the regions of the colony.

The last royal visit to Nigeria was in April, 1925 when the Duke of Windsor, the Prince of Wales, spent several days there during a tour of British West African colonies.

"UTTER NONSENSE"

UNION CHIEF BLASTS BOWATER STATEMENT

Says Producers "Know They Can Get More" Only Reason For Price Raise

ALBANY, N. Y. (A.P.)—The president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers AFL said Tuesday that the only reason for the increase in the price of newsprint is that newsprint manufacturers "know they can get more" money for it.

"This, after all the nonsense about costs, is the only reason Phillips said in a statement

The paper makers union claims to represent 75,000 workers in 33 states and six Canadian provinces.

Phillips said "it has become a popular notion that, when workers in any industry secure improvements in their wages, there must be a correspondin increase in the price of the goods they make."

He said that Sir Eric Bowater, head of the Bowater Paper Corp., had expressed this sentiment in a recent press conference at which Bowater predicted a general raise in the price of newsprint.

UTTER NONSENSE

"This is utter nonsense, particularly in the newsprint industry, and the manufacturers and publishers know it," Phillips declared.

Since Bowater's prediction, two Canadian manufacturers, St. Lawrence Corp. and Abitibi Power and Paper Corp. have announced $5 price increases—from $126 to $131 a ton (U. S. funds) delivered in New York. Both companies attributed the move to rising costs of operation.

Phillips said Bowater's recent remarks "contributed, perhaps inadvertently, to the fashion among industrialists to pin the blame for price increases on wage increases secured by unions." He continued:

"What he (Bowater) should have said, and what he undoubtedly was thinking, is that the companies are going to charge more for newsprint because they know they can get more."

Phillips said his union was concerned about newsprint prices because a general price increase would deal "a crippling blow" to small newspapers and non-commercial publications.

"Too many publications have gone out of existence in recent years," he said. "This poses a threat to the free expression of ideas. We need more papers, not fewer, if our democracy is to flourish."

TV Helps Search For Killer

TORONTO (CP)—Police turned to television Tuesday for help in a search for a man who shot and killed beer-store clerk Walter Hew left in a robbery attempt last Thursday.

John B. Nimmo, assistant chief of detectives, took to the CBC the only major clue police have discovered—the words "hold up" which the gunman scrawled on a beer-purchase form at the east-end brewers' retail store.

Arrangements were made to televise the note on evening newscasts.

Inspector Nimmo said persons associated with the wanted man may be able to recognize the writing on the television network.

Moscow Is 'Eye-Opener' Airman Says

MONTREAL (C.P.)—An R.C.A.F. corporal found Moscow an eye-opener—main streets wider than Winnipeg's Portage Avenue, tall apartment buildings, a stadium that would make a fine setting for the Grey Cup game and an exhibition park that dwarfs the famed "Ex" in Toronto.

Cpl. Bruce D. Nolan of London, Ont., is a communications and radar technician aboard the RCAF aircraft that took External Affairs Minister Pearson to Moscow and the Far East.

The 26-year-old airman promised 412 squadron at Rockliffe, Ont., before his departure, that he would write his impressions. Air transport command at nearby Lachine released the letter Tuesday.

Cpl. Nolan wrote that "Moscow is magnificent, the people are friendly and we are being treated like kings."

$20 000 Error

WINNIPEG (CP) — After six week's work in putting it up, construction workers now are busy tearing down a huge new supermarket here.

Three walls were up and the steel girders were in place. Then someone discovered part of it was being built on the wrong lot.

An official of Industrial Leaseholds Ltd. of Toronto said it was a "$20,000 error."

Why We Say--

"THE KING'S ENGLISH"

Up until the 14th century in England, Latin was the formal language for documents. The mass of the people, though, spoke a mixed Saxon. The King's court soon developed a high class of English which was only understood by other members of the court . . . and was thus referred to as, "The King's English."

M.C.A. Plane Is Forced Down

HALIFAX (CP)—A C-46 freight aircraft made a forced landing in the northern Quebec wilderness Tuesday but spokesmen for the owners, Maritime Central Airways, said the crew had been spotted, and apparently were not injured.

He said the four-engined craft had landed in Muskeg between Knob Lake, Labrador and Fort Chimo, Quebec, after it ran out of fuel. The aircraft and its crewmen were sighted from the air by two company planes and would be picked up Wednesday.

The freighter, on a 200 mile flight from Fort Chimo, Que. to Knob Lake, Labrador turned back when poor weather made it impossible to land. Relayed reports received here by RCAF search rescue centre said the pilot elected to fly back towards Fort Chimo, although he knew he didn't have enough fuel to make it.

The pilot's name and the number aboard the craft were not immediately known.

Approve Policy For Tomorrow's Big Four Parley

PARIS (Reuters)—The Atlantic pact council Tuesday approved the Western foreign ministers' policy for Thursday's Geneva Big Four meeting, but in a day-long discussion suggested a number of minor alterations.

A NATO spokesman said Tuesday night: "It is clear some changes will be made" in the Western brief.

He said the proposed changes are in form and not in substance and concern mainly the manner of presentation of the Western case.

The NATO spokesman said U. S. State Secretary Dulles wound up the discussion. He read a message from President Eisenhower sending warm greetings to the council and declaring his continued dedication to the Atlantic pact.

STUDY SUGGESTIONS

Dulles said the ministers had made many valuable suggestions which would be taken into account by the Western Big Three in making their final preparations for the Geneva negotiations.

A NATO spokesman said that Dana Wilgress, permanent Canadian representative, gave the 15-member council its first report on External Affairs Minister Pearson's recent talks with Russian leaders during his visit to Russia.

Pearson, now touring Asia, had talks in Moscow with Foreign Minister Molotov and in the Crimea with Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

The council's approval of the Western strategy for Geneva was expected during the morning, but an afternoon session had to be held.

The Western program for Geneva covers means of reducing East-West tension, development of social, political and cultural contacts, disarmament, and a plan for simultaneous reunification of Germany through free elections along with conclusion of a European security pact.

N.S. Govt. Pay Hurricane Damage

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotian government will pay about $350,000 toward damage claims arising from last year's hurricane Edna. Premier Henry Hicks told a Tuesday night press conference that payments will begin almost immediately.

The amount is about one-tenth the total of original claims received by the government's investigator, county court judge A.H. MacKinnon. Mr. Hicks said the province is going ahead on its own after the Canadian disaster relief fund declined to assist.

Judge MacKinnon received claims of more than 3,500,000 from 1,795 applicants. Adjusters reduced this figure to $1,190,000. Elimination of claims for fruit orchards, ornamental trees, telephone and telegraph lines, municipalities, institutions, clubs and similar bodies cut it to $700,000.

Remainng claims wll be paid on a percentage basis. Those adjusted between $250 and $500 will be paid at the rate of 80 per cent, those between $500 and $3,000 on a graduated scale ranging from 79 to 30 per cent. Claims over $3,000 will be paid at 30 per cent.

CLAIMS EXCLUDED

No claims under $250 were considered. Claims for summer cottages, pleasure craft, automobiles or pleasure vehicles also have been excluded.

The premier said the Canadian disaster relief fund, in a message from provincial Chief Justice J.L. Ilsley, a director, held "the losses were not so extensive as to be considered of disaster proportions entitling assistance from that fund."

"The government of Nova Scotia reluctantly accepted that ruling," Mr. Hicks said, "and has agreed to proceed without that contemplated aid, to provide some assistance and relief."

Only about 40 adjusted claims ran to more than $2,000, it was said: The largest—about $15,000—will be settled for a little under $5,000.

The hurricane hit the province September 11, 1954. Judge MacKinnon assessed losses to fishermen at $194,000; to barns and buildings, $615,000; farm machinery, $11,618; crops and orchards, $44,000; telephone poles and communication equipment, $120,000.

Russia In The Middle East

By W. N. EWER

The current Soviet diplomatic operations in the Middle East have evidently been carefully planned. And they have been carefully timed with a view to achieving the maximum immediate effect. The situation seemed to provide a favourable opportunity . . . and it has been seized.

Yet the new developments do not mark any change in Soviet policy. To take every occasion to penetrate the Middle East in one way or another has been the classical objective of Russian diplomacy since the Tsars' expanding empire reached the Black Sea and the Caucasus. To exploit and intensify whenever possible the "contradictions of the capitalist world" is a classical injunction of Leninism. There are moments when the two can be combined. All that is happening now—and this again is typically Russian—is that a period of comparative quiescence has been followed by one of intense activity.

SOVIET POSTWAR PREOCCUPATION WITH THE M.E.

At the end of the Second World War, the Middle East and the Eastern Mediterranean were one of the preoccupations of Soviet diplomacy. It was the time of the attempt to detach Azerbaidjan from Persia; of the claim to the trusteeship of Tripolitania; of the pressure on Turkey to cede Kars and Aradhan and the bases on the straits; of the pressure on Greece to give Russia a footing in the Dodecanese.

The resistance was too strong; and the pressure ceased. But Soviet diplomacy did not remain inactive. Any chance which seemed to offer itself was taken. In particular, whenever relations between Britain and Egypt became strained, Soviet assurances of support and sympathy for Egypt were always ready. Mr Vyshinsky promised that "the Soviet Union will try to assist economically and politically all Middle Eastern pepoles thristy for liberty and independence." PRAVDA accused the "British Imperialists" of aiming at the "further enslavement of Egypt." There were hints of a trade agreement that would be very favourable to Egypt. There was even a hint of the possibility of a supply of arms from Czechoslovakia. But it was made quietly clear that all this was conditional on there being no settlement with Britain.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN PACT CAUSES DISAPPOINTMENT

But during the past few months a number of factors seemed to have created that more favourable moment. There was Egyptian resentment at the conclusion of the Turco-Iraqi pact. There were sharp British disputes with Saudi Arabia over Buraimi and with Yemen over the disputed frontier of the Aden protectorate. There was trouble over Egyptian interference with shipping bound for Aqaba. There was sharpening of tension on the Israel-Arab borders. There was deep Arab feeling about French North Africa. Together, these were producing something like a rift among the Arab States; a cooling or relations between one group of them and the "Western powers," an intensification of national feeling and growing resentment of the limitations on the supply of arms.

RENEWED OPERATIONS

The moment indeed seemed propitious. And the operations began. First, an offer of Czecholovakia arms to Egypt. This was a very shrewd move. The offer was one which no Egyptain Government could possibly refuse, even if it wished to. On the other hand, acceptance would cause a great and immediate annoyance in the west. The expression of that annoyance would, in turn, irritate Egyptain pride Other Arab States would begin to look hopefully towards Moscow. Israel would be angered and alarmed and would call embarrassingly on the Western powers to "redress the balance of armaments." It would have been hard to devise a move which would more certainly trouble the waters and so provide an opportunity for Soviet dipolomatic fishing. And the fishing season opened without any delay. There has been an offer of arms to Saudi Arabia; an offer to Egypt to finance the Aswan High Dam project; an offer of a treaty of friendship and of a trade agreement to Yemen. There is probably more to follow.

It is all very adroit. And yet one wonders if the main objective of the whole operation will be attained. For it is rather too obvious that these profuse assurances of friendship and these eager offers of help are anything but disinterested. Moscow is not doing all this for the beaux yeux of the Egyptains or for sympathy with the Arab cause. And there are already many signs that the Middle Eastern governments are looking watchfully and warily at the advances which are being made to them.

As King Solomon noted, "Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird" and I feel that in this case, tempting though the baits may be, the net is too visible for sucess.

Canine Coiffure

LONDON—When Leonard Martin went to visit a dogs' beauty parlour to describe it for the BBC's "Pacific Magazine" he noticed elegant pets being delivered to the door by chauffeurs and thought this rather too much of a good thing. He expected to find the proprietress an aggressively doggy woman but met instead a distinguished-looking Colonel with a passion for dogs which had caused him to make a good business out of canine beauty culture.

The idea stemmed from the day when the Colonel has been staying at a big Berlin hotel between the two wars and had unwisely told the manager that he wanted to wash his two Alsations in the best bathroom. The manager was appalled and said indeed NOT, there was a shop for such a thing. The Colonel had never heard of or seen a dogs' beauty parlour before this but thought it a wonderful scheme for London and came back and opened the shop which he has been running now for thirty years.

The place was spotlessly clean, staffed by white-coated kennel maids and surprisingly quiet, for all the animals seemed rather bored. The Colonel said that while many of his clients were aristocratic or celebrated he treated dogs from Buckingham Palace down the social scale to cab-drivers' pets, the only difference being that cabbies' dogs paid no taxi fare to get to their appointments. The best customer was a retriever who trotted in by himself, underwent enough beautifying to last a fortnight, met his pals and went off home again on his own. Martin went to the beauty parlour to ridicule but came away with his tail between his legs, surprised at having found it such a very businesslike concern, sensible, clean, healthy and, more important of all, moderate in price.

A Fox Story

By THE OLD GROUCH

Animal stories told around this neighbourhood sometimes need to be taken with several grains of salt, but that which road foreman F. H. Spencer recounted today, as we sat in the C.N.T. office waiting to "get through" to Gander by telephone, is not sufficiently unbelievable to make it plausible.

Foxes, as everyone around here knows, have become so plentiful and so lacking fear of man that they are frequently seen lying on hillocks just off the T. C. Highway Well, as the road gang were recently eating their lunch in a gravel pit excavation on that section of the road between Glenwood and Notre Dame Junction two foxes appeared on the bank above. The men threw them scraps of food to the top of the bank and they quickly gobbled it. The next day Mr. Spencer picked up a rather long-dead trout which he found in a culvert. Taking this with him, when lunch time came, he tied it to a four fathom line and threw it towards one of the foxes which had duly appeared, no doubt looking for food scraps again.

After some cautious investigation reynard slowly advanced towards the rather "high" trout, sniffing intently. When he was almost near enough to seize it friend Spencer began to gradually draw the string towards him. The fox followed slowly, evidently somewhat puzzled at the manoeuvre. This trick was kept up for several minutes during which master fox managed to get one or two mouthfuls of the trout.

Mr. Spencer finally threw the unattached trout to the teased fox, but as he did so a patch (the original fox was a red) fox appeared on the skyline and immediately jumped down to share. Then arose, said Mr. Spencer, the fiercest animal battle he had ever witnessed. Time and again the two creatures stood on their hind legs snaping and biting each other, until the newcomer appeared to have the advantage and the red surrendered the field of battle and the remains of the trout to the interloper.

Evidently a bit of a tease, next day Mr. S. tied a piece of meat to a bough and hung it so that it would be just out of reach of any fox. To his amazement, when he returned next time the meet still remained unmoved but fox tracks beneath were numerous. And, most amazing, was the fact that three recently killed muskrats were laid just beneath the bait "as though placed by human hands." One listened opined that some person had placed the rats there, but Mr. S. emphatically expressed his conviction that the foxes were responsible.

This story came out of a discussion on the work of beavers who are flooding the highroad from time to time. Roadman Spencer described how these animals frequently block culverts on the highway. Their practice, he says, is to start in the middle of a culvert with a stump or similar obstacle and then build up an impervious block of mud behind it, checking all flow of waterthrough the culvert and flooding the road His men are frequently called on to clear these blocks which are very annoying especially now that autumn rains are flooding the country and turning the roads into mud.

The existence of these innumerable foxes is generally credited hereabouts with the tremendous scarcity of rabbits. Saturday while on the way home from Gander, the Grouch met two hunters with one lone rabbit as their spoils of the chase. It was the first he had seen this season.

Devoted Father

LONDON—"He, as a husband and as a father, has a devoted family. Whenever he is at home his children flock round him. In their midst—with an inferno of noise all round—the Secretary of State sits unmoved, writing an important speech on a pad on the arm of his chair. Often he finds a page missing—shortly to realise that a daughter has used it to play noughts and crosses."

PIMLOTT ON MOOSE:

Report Reveals Damage To Trees By Browsing

Humber Reserve Birch Stands Takes Beating

In a report to the Minister of Mines and Resources, Mr. Douglas Pimlott of the wildlife division describes in detail the effect upon the forest resources of the province of browsing by moose.

Mr. Pimlott summarises his findings as follows:

White birch and balsam fir are the two most important moose foods in Newfoundland. In disturbed areas with moderate moose populations white birch provides up to 75 per cent of the total diet. In overpopulated areas, and where mature timber stands are predominant, balsam fir is the most important winter food. White birch is browsed at all seasons of the year while balsam fir is browsed only in winter.

During the snow-free period moose range widely and utilize almost every available vegetation type which is available to them. With the first snows the moose remain more to timbered areas and use only the edges of large openings.

Moose prefer to feed where they can move freely and reproduction in moderately or understocked stands is generally browsed heavier than that in densely stocked stands.

The Moose Damage to Forest Reproduction Survey was conducted in selected cutover areas of the western, central, and eastern sections of the island during the summer of 1953.

Of the areas surveyed serious damage to balsam fir reproduction was limited to the Humber Game Reserve. In the Birchy Lake and Sandy River areas approximately 80 per cent of all stems had been browsed. In the Adie's Lake, Twin Lakes, and Terra Nova areas 6, 7 and 16 per cent, respectively, of the reproduction had been browsed by moose.

The browsing of white birch reproduction is much more uniform and much heavier than in the case of balsam fir. The lightest browsing was recorded for the Terra Nova area where 42 per cent of the trees have been browsed by either moose or rabbits. In the Birchy Lake, Twin Lakes, and Sandy River areas the browsing percentages were 85, 86, and 89 per cent, respectively. In the Humber Game Reserve a large percentage of birch reproduction has been killed or by browsing pressure.

Moose densities show great variation across the island with the highest populations occurring in the central section.

The carrying-capacity of the various sections varies greatly due to the differences in the relative composition of forested and non-forested lands, and to the distribution of disturbed and undisturbed lands.

Red Cross

Regional Conference At Lewisporte

President W. S. Perlin, Commissioner D. G. Decker and other Red Cross officials are back from a Regional Conference held at Lewisporte last week. Representatives were present from every branch in Notre Dame Bay, Gander, and Alexander Bay. Several branch members came to the conference on their own signifying the keen interest taken in Red Cross work.

TWO-DAY MEETING

The two-day meetings were held in the Masonic Hall and were opened by a welcome from Mayor Woolfrey and Lewisporte Red Cross president, Mrs. M. Russell. Discussions included all phases of Red Cross work, including disaster services, home nursing and a broadening of civilian welfare programs.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

Junior Red Cross members Sidney Small, Freddy Carpenter, Jean Manuel and Marion Freake attended the meetings. Through question and answer period, the Juniors gave the Senior Red Cross a good account of the work they were doing. Through the courtesy of Principal Mouland, the Red Cross officials visited the schools and had a chance to get acquainted with Junior Red Cross students.

BANQUET HELD

A banquet at the Masonic Hall featured Magistrate G. W. Clarke as chief speaker. Mr. Clarke spoke of his long association with Red Cross and of its value to the community, in the multipilicity of the services it provides. Mr. Perlin, the president outlined the importance of regional conferences, and their place in the future. During the conference, Major Peter Cashin gave an address on Civil Defence and spoke of its relationship to Red Cross.

Colonel Balchen To Address Rotary

Colonel Bernt Balchen, famous Arctic explorer and veteran airman, who recently arrived in St. John's to take over the office of Assistant to General Barcus, Commanding officer of NEAC, and special advisor on Arctic affairs, will be the guest speaker at Rotary on Thursday.

The Colonel will be introduced by Mr. Finn Frost, of the Department of Mines and Resources and a fellow Norwegian.

Colonel Bernt Balchen joined the Norwegian Air Force in 1920 and served as a pilot on the Amundsen-Ellsworth Relief Expedition to Spitsbergen in 1925. In 1926 he was a member of the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Noble Arctic Expedition. In 1927 he was one of the pilots on Admiral Byrd's flight across the Atlantic during which he made the famous forced landing on the coast of France. From 1928 to 1930 he was chief pilot of the Byrd Expedition to the Antarctic.

Before coming to the U.S. Colonel Balchen had many hours of flying over ice and snow country in Norway where he operated an airline. He also flew with the Finns against Russia. After the occupation of Norway by the Germans he ferried planes for the Royal Air Force from San Diego, California, to Singapore.

He was transferred from the Norweigian Air Force to the U.S. Army Air Force on September 4, 1941 and was commissioned a captain in the Specialist Reserve.

Colonel Balchen's first assignment was on Greenland where he built the Army base, Bluie West Eight Sondrestrom. In the fall of 1943 he left Greenland and joined the Eighth Air Force in Europe. While serving there he established a route between the United Kingdom and Sweden for evacuating nationalities from occupied countries to England. More than 5,000 persons were evacuated by that route.

Later, Colonel Balchen worked with the Norwegians underground in occupied Norway and from November 1944 to August 1945, was in command of air operations which chased the Germans from northern Norway and Finland. Operating from the municipal airport at Stockholm, Sweden, his unit delivered fourteen hundred tons of supplies and eleven hundred saboteurs during that hundred saboteurs during that time. He returned to Norway in 1946 where he reorganized the Norwegian Air Line and became its president. He was recalled to active duty in the United States Air Force in October 1948 and named commanding officer of the Tenth Rescue Squadron at Fort Richardson, Alaska.

More recently, Col. Balchen won fame as the father of Thule Air Force Base. He has also become well known for his water color paintings of the Arctic regions. He has had several successful one-man shows in American cities. He is now assigned as Special Assistant for Arctic Affairs, Hq. NEAC.

Foreign Ministers At Geneva

To follow up the top-level conference of last July the foreign ministers of the Big Four nations will meet tomorrow at Geneva. It may be the opening phase of one of the most important international gatherings of our era. All depends on whether the Russians are prepared to give further proof that their present amiable appearance is an honest new look or a mask that conceals an unaltered and unalterable purpose.

Nobody imagines for a moment that the change of Soviet tactics was merely the result of a change of leadership. That would be a naive belief. A combination of circumstances, starting with NATO and ending with the French agreement to German rearmament, forced Russia to the council table and to a more conciliatory attitude. And it may well be that stirrings of discontent within the Soviet boundaries are causing Bulganin and Company to seek a truce that will enable them to raise domestic living standards.

The Geneva discussions should indicate whether these conjectures have a basis in fact. It is reported that the western powers intend to offer inclusion of Russia in a general European security pact in return for Soviet consent to free elections in Germany. That agreement along these lines could be expected to come quickly is inconceivable. On the other hand, the Russians have to give proof that their present conciliatory mood is a true reflection of their desire for a negotiated peace. The west will not be put off by the propaganda devices employed by Molotov at Berlin last year and in other and earlier conferences. Evasive tactics will not be patiently tolerated. The test of her sincerity is now at hand.

4-H Clubs

The 4-H club is a youth movement that had its origin, we believe, in the great farming areas of America's Middle West. Be that as it may, it is an important, constructive and growing organization which is gaining a rapid foothold in Newfoundland, thanks to the efforts of Dr. Florence O'Neill, Director of Adult Education.

The name of the movement is an abbreviation. It stands for Health, Heart, Hand and Head. These terms in their application to a youth movement need no explanation. The 4-H objective is to develop in young people a healthy understanding of their world they live in and the things that are needed to live well in that world.

The delegations now in St. John's for a specially conducted tour of the capital come from many parts of the island, from Fogo district, from St. George's, from Bonavista North and Trinity North.

They are made up of a happy, intelligent and healthy group of youngsters who have specially earned this novel vacation and will return to their homes with a much better notion of some of the things that make Newfoundland a going concern.

4-H is a fine educational movement that reflects credit on its local organizers and deserves support on a province-wide scale.

Newsprint Prices

Abitibi Paper Company has just followed the example set by the St. Lawrence Paper Company by announcing an increase of five dollars a ton in the price of newsprint. This will bring the price in New York from the present $126 a ton to a new high of $131 a ton.

The newsprint manufacturers were hit quite hard a few years ago when the Canadian dollar, allowed to find its own level, sold at a premium against the American dollar. This had the effects of reducing substantially the returns received from American buyers. Since then, the manufacturers claim, higher costs have occurred to make higher prices necessary.

But it is easy enough to understand the disturbing effect of these new increases on publishers. They fear that they will not be able to recover the higher cost since further increases in the prices of newspapers may be detrimental to circulation and affect advertising revenue. Many American newspapers are now operating on marginal profits and this fact explains the chorus of protests that has arisen since the newsprint price increases were first announced.

Another Liberal Defeat

A recent Gallup Poll showed a decline in Liberal voting strength and a gain in Conservative support. Last month's by-elections confirmed this trend. The Conservatives not only wrested a stronghold in New Brunswick from the Liberals but also made heavy inroads into Liberal majorities in two Quebec ridings. Now in the Toronto-Spadina riding which the Liberals have held for twenty-five years, another Conservative victory has been won.

It would, of course, be foolish to overestimate these Conservative gains. They still leave the party with only 53 seats in the House of Commons or less than one-third the Liberal membership of 169 but they certainly seem to represent some turning of the tide. Whether the trend can continue to the point of a Liberal defeat in the next general election is another matter.

But the Liberals have been a long time in power. In the past few years they have lost some of their best men. Neither Mr. St. Laurent nor Mr. Howe may want to run again. Both are old men. Few outstanding leaders will remain in the cabinet. And there is also the possibility that the electorate may think at long last that it is time for a change.

It is plain enough, at any rate, that these by-elections results must give the Liberal leadership plenty of food for thought. The old spark has been lost. Perhaps fear of defeat may galvanize the Liberals to more positive and aggressive policies. On the other hand, their recent success may put new fighting spirit into the Conservatives and cause them to reveal to the electorate a progressive outlook that will earn them the right to form the next government of Canada.

Strength For To-day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DANGER OF SUCCESS

The dictionary defines success as "obtaining one's desired end...succeeding fully or in accordance with one's desires."

As a dictionary definition this is satisfactory, yet neither the dictionary nor any other book can adequately define success. For success varies with the individual. The Biblical dictum that to whom much is given much is required, means that the measure of success for one person is not necessarily the measure of success for another. He who starts high must go higher. The savage who learns how to read and write does well, but the man born amid cultured surroundings must go far beyond that to be successful.

Success is probably the most dangerous experience one ever encounters. Someone has spoken of the catastrophe of success—meaning the capacity success has of puffing people up with pride, ruining them with an abundance of good fortune, and making them feel that the power of achievement abides wholly in themselves. The truth of the matter is that no one ever succeeds apart from the efforts of others. And, of course, the capacity to succeed is a God-given thing. We may say that we succeeded by the work of our own hands, but God gave us those hands.

Yearn for success and try to achieve it. But be careful when once you have. It can be terrifically dangerous.

THE LATEST IN PARIS
(France Actuelle)

Want to find a hotel room in Paris? That's going to be as easy as coffee and croissants for breakfast. When you arrive at Orly airfield all you do is breeze past the genial French custom man, walk up to "Hacosy," and push its button. This lights up a chart, giving you up-to-the-minute information on the number of rooms empty in the city's major hotels. Choose your hotel and head for it with confidence. Or perhaps it might be better to telephone first to make sure the room will be there for you when you arrive from the airport. "Hacosy" operates through robots placed in each hotel, which automatically feed the information on available rooms to the airport chart.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

In this materialistic age, first principles are often forgotten. People tend to take too much for granted and forget that they have responsibility for their own good government. Political interest is dulled by superficial distractions and that is a bad thing to happen in any country.

In the hope that party interest is not dead even if it has been dulled, the Progressive-Conservatives are making a new bid for popular support. They are reminding citizens that the party system is essential to good government, that political democracy can only function effectively when there is an adequate alternative government to which the people may turn at will or need, and that it is a contribution to better government when an opposition party can build up its strength.

If seats in the local legislature were to be awarded on a basis of proportional representation, the Conservatives would have a larger membership in the House of Assembly. At the next election the popular vote for the opposition is very likely to show the highest percentage since confederation. But the full strength of the opposition cannot be demonstrated unless the party is well financed, well-organized and equipped with a good, sound policy capable of enlisting a large measure of public confidence and support.

The financing of a party is a first essential to growth because there are many expenses which are essential to efficient and progressive organization. Branches have to be set up. Liaison must be maintained on a continuous basis between central headquarters and community and district branches. A whole time secretariat is needed. Speakers must travel the province and sell the public on the party programme. Government policy should be kept under constant study. These and other necessities of party organization cost a lot of money.

We are not used in this country to finding financial support at what may be called the grass-roots level. Most people have grown up in the belief that they should get something out of politics. Few have ever realized that they should put something into politics. But if political interest is founded on sincere political convictions, it should be given expression in the form of membership contributions. If all those who voted for the Conservatives in the last election were to be willing to contribute ten cents a week to a party fund, it would not be very hard to raise $100,000. Contrariwise, it may be said that if opposition supporters are not willing to make any financial contribution at all, their support is not the kind that helps to win elections or light fires under a dormant party organization.

We realize, of course, that it is sheer unadulterated idealism to expect people to think of party politics above the level of personal prejudices and likes and dislikes. Politics is nothing if it is not practical in its application. People turn against governments less because they disapprove of policy than because they do not feel that a government is doing enough for them as individuals. There is an ancient tradition that says that people should get something out of voting for the winning side. It is the old tale of giving the spoils to the victors. But we doubt that the party system will ever thrive on this materialistic outlook and nothing else. People, if given something in the way of sound principles and men in whom absolute confidence can be reposed, may be made enthusiastic supporters of a cause. The great hope of an opposition party at the moment is its ability to incite enthusiasm by protruding a credible policy that is bound to win the support of those who want the best possible government for the region in which they live. Whether a policy of this kind can be devised is the great imponderable of the moment in local politics.

Aerial Survey Of Remote Graham Land

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Two large airplanes will take off from Toronto soon for a 6,500-mile journey and five-month vigil at the bottom of the globe.

The twin-engined Canso amphibians will fly south to the Falkland islands, off the southern tip of South America, on a massive surveying mission. Between Christmas and April, 1956, the planes will photograph about 50,000 square miles of remote Graham Land, a rocky peninsula of Antarctica.

It is hoped the survey may open a new source of minerals and other basic materials for British industrial development.

MAJOR ROLE

A British firm has been commissioned by the United Kingdom government to carry out the survey and a Canadian subsidiary will play a major part in the project. The Canadian company will supply the planes, some technical equipment and three members of the flying crews.

The aircraft have been outfitted with cameras, magnetometers for mineral hunting and radar systems for controlled approaches and landings in poor weather. They will leave Toronto Nov. 5 and fly down the east coast of South America to Port Stanley in the Falklands.

Leader of the operation is Peter Mott, a 42-year-old Briton who has led three expeditions to Greenland.

AIR MAPPING

From Fort Stanley, the aircraft will go to Deception island, 80 miles north of Graham Land, to join the expedition's 900-ton ship, "Olaf Sven," which will serve as operation headquarters.

A helicopter, flying from the ship's deck, will carry ground parties of surveyors, engineers, radar and radio technicians. The surveyors will establish a network of ground control points upon which the air mapping will be based.

Deception island is a ring of cliffs, some 1,500 feet high, around a harbour which is seven miles long and six miles wide. The 13-ton aircraft, moored in the harbour, will be taxied up a sloping shore of lava ash for maintenance and fuelling and 7,000 square feet of steel plate will be laid as a slip-way.

Ice-floes sometimes enter the harbour and when this happens the Cansos will lower their wheels and land on a 700-yard runway beside the base camp.

For the Relief Of Suffering

Group-Captain Leonard Cheshire, V.C., D.S.O., D.F.C., is one of the most remarkable Britons alive today. He had an exceptionally distinguished war record in which he won his V.C. "for careful planning, brilliant execution and contempt for danger," his triple D.S.O. "for leadership and perseverance," his D.F.C. "for sustained courage over long periods" and was Great Britain's official observer at the dropping of the first atomic bomb. He has now abandoned all connection with the Services and is bending all his energies towards his Mission for the relief of suffering.

Cheshire, who even now is only thirty-five, began after the war an unsuccessful venture to establish self-sufficient colonies for unsettled ex-Servicemen but while he was recuperating in Canada from illness this project almost collapsed. He came back home to face crippling debts and found that one of his former colonists, an elderly man with no friends or relatives, lay dying from incurable cancer in a nearby hospital which was unable to keep him. As his last address was the colony at Cheshire's home, Le Court, in Hampshire, Cheshire solved the problem courageously by undertaking to tend the man himself, learning rudimentary nursing as he went along. This patient's happy last months of life saw the birth of Cheshire's determination to pledge himself to relieve the suffering of unwanted, chronic sick. Other incurables came to live at Le Court and in time it became known as a home where discarded human beings could regain their self-respect and end their lives in peace and comfort. From this beginning grew the Mission for the Relief of Suffering and Cheshire has now started seven such homes, each of them looked after by a warden. The homes receive no government grants but are helped by donations and the inhabitants are encouraged to be as self-supporting as possible and to do all they can to look after themselves and each other.

BBC television cameras recently visited Le Court and saw Cheshire and the patients he helps. Stephen Black, interviewer for the BBC's "London Calling Asia" programme, 'Personal Call,' visited him too but this time at Ampthill in Bedfordshire, a lovely eighteenth century mansion handed over by the National Trust which is one of the Mission's seven homes. Friends of Cheshire in India have now become interested in his ideas and have opened in Kodaikanal, in Southern India, a house run on his lines. 'Personal Call' will be heard in South East Asia at about the same time that Cheshire himself arrives there to give initial help to the organization.

Avalon as Naval Examination Officer, serving in this capacity until the war ended but, though he knew it not then, the toll of war had left its mark on his once agile and healthy frame. The nights of scanning the restless heaving ocean and facing the Atlantic gales had weakened his strength and, fighter though he was, two years ago, he was forced to go to hospital for a lengthy period of rest and professional treatment. He never once despaired and consented, late this summer, to have major surgery performed, from his last ordeal, he never rallied and, as a lovely September sun spread its last rays over the city that Manuel knew and loved so much, death came to call for him at the early age of forty-nine years, leaving behind to mourn his early passing a lovely wife, the former Helen Burden, of Merrymeeting Road, an aged father, two brothers and a host of friends. Those of us who knew Manuel Roberts liked him for he was a likeable fellow.

Mount Pleasant Cemetery saw a sad cortege the Sunday afternoon Manuel Roberts was laid to rest. The autumal gold and dim of the southside hills seemed to shed a sombre hue over the harbour waters as if they too mourned for one now gone who loved old ocean sights and sounds; but the rustling winds sweeping down the green slopes of Mount Pleasent seemed to whisper a soft Requiem giving the consoling and comforting assurance that at long last our friend has found rest from all his sufferings.

With heads bowed we stood in solemn silence as Captain Gordown Warren of the Canadian Legion following the service by Rev. F. E. Vipond of Gower Street United Church, read the soldiers' and sailors' ritual, a crimson poppy fell on the slowly sinking casket, we said hail and farewell to one of Bonavista North's finest sons who, in the battle of life was a gallant fighter and a gentleman.

Meeting Feildian Home and School Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Feildian Home and School Association took place on Thursday evening, October 20th. Parents were notified, as usual, through the school and a fairly large number attended.

The President, Mrs. A. B. Perlin, in her opening remarks, drew the attention of those present to an interesting series of lectures to be broadcast over the CBC Network, commencing November 3rd. and dealing with the parent end of the parent pupil team. The lectures will be by Dr. S. R. Laycock and are heartily recommended to all who have school age children.

The balance of the meeting, as was previously announced, was conducted by the teachers of the College, with Mr. Anderson in the chair. There were five speakers from the faculty and the subjects and individual speakers were as follpws:

Testing, Mr. Grant; Classroom Problems, Miss Halfyard; The Philosophy of Education, Mr. Hewson; Latin in the School, Mr. French; Industrial Arts, Mr. Humber.

The parents had been told that an interesting evening was in store for them and they were not disappointed. The keen attention, which was given the different subjects and the subsequent questions which came from the assembly, attested to the interest aroused by the speakers and the general opinion was that this was a meeting which most of those present would not care to have missed.

The usual refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The next Home and School Association Meeting will be held on Thursday, November 17th when, among other matters of business, the Executive hopes to be able to have a committee give the parents attending a resume of the first two of Dr. Laycock's lectures, which are entitled "Self Understanding" and "The Bossy Parent" scheduled to take place on November 3rd and November 10th, the commencing hour not being definite.

The good attendance at meetings so far this fall is most encouraging and indicates the interest being taken in the Association's activities. Parents of Feild College boys, who have not yet enrolled for this season, will be heartily welcomed at the November meeting.

Montreal, was in charge of a branch at Moncton, and worked as a junior assistant at Headquarters in Ottawa, before she was appointed as director of the Montreal branch, where she served for 3 years. She was appointed to go from Montreal to Ottawa and take over the work as director in chief in January 1946.

As director of the order, Miss Livingston has 550 nurses and 117 branches to oversee. Two of these branches are in Newfoundland, and she says, there is room here for further expansion.

All nurses working with the order are graudates of a recognized hospital school of nursing, and are registered in the province in which they work. A large proportion of the nurses have taken additional training. To make this training possible the V.O.N. National Board awards 50 bursaries of $750 each for graduate nurses to help them take post graduate training in public health. This policy of helping the nurses in their post graduate studies is part of a broad policy to attract trained personnel to the work of the V.O.N. services.

Miss Livingston was invested with the rank of officer sister of the Venerable Order of St. John of Jerusalem last Friday at Rideau Hall, in a ceremony presided over by the Governor General of Canada, His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey. This rank was bestowed on Miss Livingston in recognition of her assistance in revising the Home Nursing course for the St. John Ambulance Association.

V.O.N. services in St. John's have been established for the past thre years, and the financial campaign now in progress is to help defray expenses for a service which asks a nominal fee for home nursing from those who can pay, and often gives its services for lower than cost to those needing care but unable to contribute for the service rendered.

Police made an arrest for drunken driving at 2.15 this morning. A young man whose car was stopped at the junction of Queen's Rd., and Boggan St., was taken into custody and will appear in Court today.

The first Canadian grain ever sent to Europe was grown at Port Royal, N. S., early in the 17th century.

NO SECOND CLASS HIGHWAY

Editor Daily News,

Dear Sir:—There has been reference made over the last year or so by Government officials that Newfoundland cannot afford to build a highway to Trans-Canada specifications, and that modifications should be permitted to allow this Province to put in a lower cost highway.

If, and when that section of the Trans-Canada highway be "modified" to cut cost it will be a very expensive economy. Here is why When this highway is paved and open to traffic speeds on it should be either fifty or sixty miles an hour, and will have to be at least the former on the longer trips Business cars will not operate slowly since distances will have to be covered with most economy in time. A fifth class road, therefore, such as the Topasil Road, would be a failure from the start, and would cause a lot of serious highway accidents.

We cannot afford, therefore, to have a second class highway, and it is just as well to face that fact now rather than to be required to spend additional large amounts for future widening, cutting grades, and bringing curves up to nation's standards.

Yours truly,
BUSINESS.

Vardy Has Poor Luck On Hunting Trip

One of the greatest boosters of big game hunting in this province, Tourist Director O.L. Vardy met with a pot of hard luck this week when he took Pete Barrett, Editor of True Magazine into the woods near Glenwood on a Moose Hunting trip.

Back in Gander yesterday Mr. Vardy said that the trip was a blank. No big game was seen and to add to this hard luck the party was obliged to hole up in a camp at Walls Lake for four days because of the recent heavy fall of snow in the area.

But this had not discouraged Mr. Barrett who is making a movie of big game hunting here and today he will once again head for the country with the hope of bagging a moose or Caribou. Mr. Vardy had to call off the hunt because of his committment to speak at a meeting of the Exploit's Valley Chamber of Commerce at Grand Falls tonight. Ironically enough the subject of his address is said to be "Big game hunting in Newfoundland."

The twenty-eight delegates from 4-H clubs from three districts in Newfoundland who are visiting St. John's for Provincial 4-H week began their fourth day yesterday with breakfast in the Blue room at the Newfoundland Hotel.

Dr. Florence O'Neill, director of Adult Education presided. Miss Daphne Pratt, director of Health Education with the Department of Health was also a guest for the meal.

The opening of the assembly at 9 a.m. in the Board Room of the Department of Education was presided over by Dr. O'Neill, and Rev. Fr. J. L. Lacey, gave the children the message for the day.

Children taking part in the competition for National 4-H week, which will take place later this year had their demonstrations judged by Mrs. E. Mawer, Mrs. R. Murrin, Mrs. Goundrey and Mrs. Scary.

After the judging the delegates divided up into project groups, those interested in agriculture and woodworking went to the Government demonstration farm at Mount Pearl, Mrs. Goundrey took the group interested in foods and Mrs. A. Ryan looked after the clothing projects.

All children were supplied with packed lunches, which were sponsored by Chalker and Company, and stayed at their various projects. The agriculture and woodworking group stayed until 5 p.m. Those interested in other projects left the Department of Education at 2.30 p.m., visited Mammy's Bakery, and returned at 3.30 p.m. to continue the work on their projects until 5 p.m.

Dinner, sponsored by Steers Ltd., was served to the delegates at Candlelight restaurant, and the group returned to the Department of Education at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Muriel McKay gave them a short talk on "Better Speech for Newfoundlanders," and the rest of the evening was spent learning folk dancing and singing songs.

Today the delegates have more interesting visits and tours ahead for their week of learning all about training their heads to clearer thinking, their hearts to greater loyalty, their hands to larger service, and keeping their health for better living.

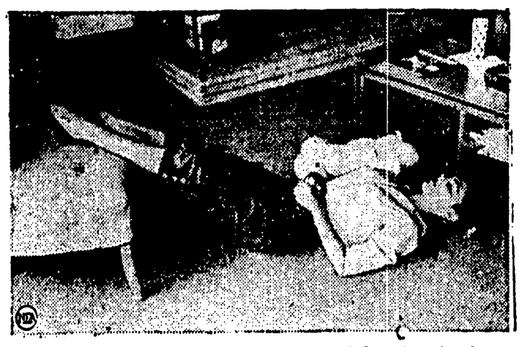
Fight Fatigue With Cat Nap



Singing star Joanne Gilbert shows one of her favorite beauty treatments: the feet-up nap. Her dog likes it, too.

BY ALICIA HART

Weariness, being just plain tired, is one of the chief beauty problems most of these woman have discovered that even the most artful of cosmetics, the most becoming of dresses and the most drastic efforts can't make them look beautiful when they're bone weary.

This kind of fatigue effects the outlook, it makes the eyes look tired, it cuts down on enjoyment of even favorite pastimes. It causes stress between husband and wife and takes its toll on the children. It can finally appear as real sickness—aches and pains, headaches and upset stomch.

There are many ways of fighting the battle against fatigue. Many have been discussed in these columns as being the first line of the battle for beauty: well-fitted shoes, good foundation garments, enough sleep, economical housework, good diet, adequate breakfasts, avoidance of worry about the impossible and a sensible approach to the process of aging.

Here's another vital aid. This is the cat nap or the short period of lying down during the day. This is not the time to sort out the day or try to organize tasks ahead. That can be done over coffee or tea. This is a time to relax and sink into the floor or bed and untense.

Very well, you say, for the unhampered. But you have two children and a house to run. What then? Most nonschool children take a nap every afternoon. Try to get all the kids on the same schedule, if possible, and take your period of lying down then.

A favorite way to do this is with the feet up. Ballet dancers often do this just before a performance. It rests and drains the hard-worked feet and legs. If you're the kind who can take a real nap, by all means do it. But if you can't sleep, just relax with the feet up for as long as you can spare.

Between Us Women

IT'S IMPORTANT TO GRANT CONCESSIONS TO CHILDREN

Letting children grow up and learn to think for themselves and make their own decisions is largely a matter of the parents making concessions.

Wise parents handle this concession-making by sticking to their guns in important matters and giving their children leeway in less important issues.

A mother and father of a 14-year-old daughter have agreed to let me decide whether or not they should permit her to wear lipstick.

That isn't for me to decide. But discussing their problem may help them and other parents to face this business of concession-making.

According to the mother: "Our daughter is beginning to take pride in her clothes, hair, etc. Now we are faced with the problem of whether or not to let her wear lipstick.

"She is one of three girls in her class who do not wear lipstick. The other two girls are younger than she is.

"I recall how I loved those first tubes of lipstick of my own and I want her to be able to wear lipstick like most of the other girls.

Boys Show Herd Instincts, Too

"Her father, however, says lipstick lowers a girl in his estimation. When she argues that all the other girls are wearing it he says: "That's the trouble with women. They all must be exactly the same."

"Even though he feels that way he has agreed that he will abide by your decision."

Well, the lipstick problem is one of those minor matters. While it means a great deal to a girl it is actually a harmless thing. So if parents can overcome their objections to it and let a daughter decide for herself when she should start wearing lipstick they are really making only a minor concession. Yet it is an important one for the girl who is taking the first steps toward growing up.

As for the father's saying that the trouble with women is that they all be alike, is it really true that teen-age girls are more sheep-like than teen-age boys?

If the father will look around at the crew cuts, the jeans, the pink shirts teen-age boys are sporting he'll see that they are as much one of a kind as the girls. It's the age, not the sex, that makes being like the others and doing like the others so terribly important.

Apples and Marshmallows Make Halloween Treat

THEY'RE SPECTACULAR LOOKING as well as good eating. Try these simply-made Kabobs for a Halloween special event.

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

Apple Marshmallow Kabobs go well with toasted franks. They seem perfect for the Halloween party supper. We learned about them in the state of Washington which prides itself on its red Delicious apples.

Apple Marshmallow Kabobs

Red delicious apples, marshmallows, cinnamon, granulated sugar.

To prepare, cut red delicious apples into wedges and remove seeds. String apple wedges on metal skewers alternately with marshmallows. Sprinkle apples with a mixture of cinnamon and granulated sugar. Slide under the broiler for a few minutes to toast marshmallows and tinge the apples with brown freckles of cinnamon sugar. The apple wedges do not cook—they are crisp and cool inside, with the skin and outside lightly blistered and crusty. These Kabobs may also be done on long wiener forks over an open fire or in the fireplace. For a special treat, try this Apple-Cheese Dessert.

Apple-Cheese Dessert
(6 servings)

Five cups apple slices (pared), 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup table fat, 2-3 cup grated cheese.

Fill pie pan or shallow baking dish with apples; sprinkle with lemon juice and ¼ cup of the sugar. Mix cinnamon, flour salt, and the other ½ cup sugar. Cut in fat until mixture is granular. Stir in cheese. Spread over apples. Bake in 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) until apples are tender—about 40 minutes. Cool before cutting to serve. Serve with plain cream or ice cream, if desired.

Household Hint

If a woollen sweater has shrunk nothing much can be done about it. However, if shrunk only slightly, it can be corrected by soaking in cool water, then gradually stretching it back to shape. If you have a cardboard outline of the original size, so much the better. Pin the sweater to the outline, stretching it gently. While it dries, continue the gentle stretching process every 15 minutes or so.

Dr. Jordan Answers

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

MOST EFFECTIVE DRUGS ARE POTENT AND SHOULD BE USED WITH DUE CARE

Almost any drug which is strong enough to be useful also possesses properties which can have harmful or unpleasant effects.

Q—What harmful effects can come from the prolonged use of dexedrine sulfate tablets? Will they cause insanity?—Mrs. J. B.

A—This drug, and those which are related to it, exert some stimulating actions on the central nervous system and have thus been used in certain conditions characterized by mental depression. They also act on the stomach, reducing the sensation of hunger to some extent, and are sometimes used as an aid in helping to maintain a rigid diet. Dexedrine has some other effects. It can, for example, cause a temporary increase in the level of blood sugar. It is not a recognized cause for insanity. Since it is a potent preparation, it should not be taken for a prolonged period unless the patient is closely watched by a physician in case undesirable effects develop.

Q—I have just read your article about some people who seem to enjoy ill health. However, there are a large number who are unfortunate in that they have real physical disabilities and their relatives and friends will delight in this article as proof that they were right in belittling the actual ailments. Why not write on the other side of the question?—E.

A—I believe it is cruel to make fun of or belittle the misery of those who are ill.

Q—Please explain alopecia areata. My son started to go bald in spots on the head and even his chin soon after his discharge from the navy.—Mrs. E. M.

—Alopecia areata is a peculiar condition in which the hair, usually of the head but sometimes elsewhere, falls out in spots, perhaps varying in size of a dime to that of a half dollar. What causes this is still entirely unknown. The hair usually grows back after a substantial passage of time.

Q—Is a dark, discolored stool a definite sign of cancer?—Reader.

A—Tests for blood should be made; if it is found, the digestive tract should be examined for the source of the bleeding. There are many possibilities, other than cancer, such as an ulcer of the stomach, but this symptom, when it occurs, requires immediate follow-up to find the cause.

Q—I have rheumatoid arthritis and have been told that someone with this ailment should not drink milk, or eat cottage cheese or eggs. What is your advice?—Mrs. M. N.

A—Unless there are exceptional circumstances which make these foods undesirable, it seems unlikely that most doctors would eliminate milk, milk products and eggs from the diet of a person with rheumatoid arthritis

Q—Is there a test that shows if a person is allergic to cats?—Mrs. S. T.

A—Solutions can be made from cat dander, or cat hair, which then can be applied to the human skin. The reaction or lack of same to such solutions would usually show whether or not allergy was present.

SAMPLES SHOW BREAKFAST CAN BE SPARKLING MEAL

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

In Chicago recently at the Newspaper Food editors conference; we did a lot of serious eating. Two of the breakfasts were outstanding.

Swift and Company served an 1855 type of breakfast to mark the company's first hundred years in business. We had baked apple, breakfast steak, potato patticakes, graham "gems".

Graham Gems—Yield: 1 dozen (2¾ inches in diameter)

One cup unsifted graham or whole wheat flour, 1 cup sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, well beaten, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons melted shortening.

Mix together graham flour, all-purpose flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Stir into dry ingredients. Stir to mix only. Do not beat. Fill large deep muffin pans, rubbed with shortening, one-half full. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Sunkist growers played up the importance of oranges and lemons Their delicious breakfast included tiny lemon-poppy seed coffee rings orange blossom rolls and lemon drop ring.

Lemon Drop Ring

Lemon-sugar: one-third sugar, grated peel of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel, 3 cups biscuit mix, ½ cup water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Make Lemon-sugar: Mix sugar and peel together and set aside until needed. Mix sugar, grated lemon peel and biscuit mix together in large bowl. Combine water and lemon juice; add to biscuit mix; stir to make a stiff dough. Brush an 8-inch ring mold or 9x5-inch loaf pan with melted butter, sprinkle generously with lemon sugar. Divide in four parts and shape each into 12 small balls of dough. Line mold with 2 rows of balls (using 12 in each row) to form first layer. Brush with half the melted butter; sprinkle with half the remaining lemon-sugar mixture. Repeat for second layer. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Turn upside down on cooling rack and, if desired, glaze with plain icing while still warm. For plain icing, melt together ½ cup confectioners' sugar, 1½ teaspoons milk and few drops vanilla.

Changing London

Three of London's best-known restaurants, Frescati's in Oxford Street, Romano's in the Strand, and Pagani's in Great Portland Street, have closed during the last few years. The reasons are many but chief amongst them is the fact that prosperous factories are willing to pay high prices for offices in central London and restaurant proprietors find it easier to close their restaurants and convert them into offices, living comofrtably on the proceeds or the rent instead of growing grey before their time through worrying over the staff shortage.

But the saddest blow of all to the Edwardian returning nostalgically to London after a lng absence wuld be t find that the Langham Htei. the very symbol of comfort and respectability to all visitors from the provinces and aboard, is no more. Even people wh have never been to London know the Langham by repute, provided they are readers of the Sherlock Holmes adventures. It was within those discreet and sober portals that the King of Bohemia stayed befre he went to nearby Baker Street to consult Holmes about the machinations of the beautiful Irene Adler, it was from the same hotel that Captain Morstan mysteriously disappeared as a prelude to the singular affair of the Sign of Fur. The Langham survived as a htel until the Second World War, and many famous people stayed there when they came to London to broadcast, as it is just across the street from Broadcasting House. The building is still there and still called the Langham but now it has been turned into offices: half accommodates a well-known manufacturing firm and half houses—part of the BBC itself, including the heads of its overseas services and many of their staff and a number of other departments. They carry on the work of this great organisation in rooms that are still very reminiscent of hotel bedrooms with their built-in hot and cold wash basins which are a boon to the staff. But whether a senior or junior official uses the room in which the King of Bohemia stayed is not known, although Sam Pollock, broadcasting in the BBC's North American Service, says that he himself uses one of them when he types his weekly 'News From Home."

Joe L. Brown Says He'll Get Pirates In World Series

By JOE BRADIS

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Handsome Joe L. Brown, son of famed movie comedian Joe E. Brown, became general manager of the pennant-hungry Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday with a promise to get the team "back in the race and into the world series."

"The job, of course, is a great challenge to me, but I think it is a challenge that can be met," said the 37-year-old successor to Branch Rickey Sr. Brown's contract for one year at an undisclosed slary makes him one of the youngest top executives in the major leagues.

Rickey, who will remain in an advisory capacity, will serve as board chairman. His son, Branch Jr., also retains his post of vice-president in charge of minor league clubs.

Brown, a protege of Rickey since he was 16, said his first big job will be to name a new field manager to succeed Fred Haney who was let out the day before the 1955 season ended.

Haney Tuesday signed as a coach with Milwaukee Braves for one year.

John Galbreath, the president of the club and Columbus, Ohio, real estate millionaire, said he had turned down an offer to sell the Pirates two days after the world series for enough cash that "we could have gotten out whole without any loss." He did not disclose who made the offer.

Stukus Looks For Another Chance As Lions' Pilot

WINNIPEG (CP)—Annis Stukus, coach of the British Columbia Lions, says he would like another chance to do battle with other Western Interprovincial Football Union clubs but "on even terms."

His team wound up its second season Monday night, dropping a 24-13 decision to Winnipeg Blue Bombers. It was their 11th loss in 16 league games.

In an interview after the game, Stukus said:

"I would like just one chance to meet all these other fellows on even terms. . . . I've never had a chance to go into a game with the other clubs with as good personnel as they owned. I've always been behind the eight-ball."

BETTER RECORD

The Lions this year bettered their initial season in the Western conference when they won only one game in 16. But Stukus is still having team-building troubles.

He said he has to build the B. C. team from the ground up and "I just want the chance to coach them again."

Stukus thinks the Lions did well this year.

"We've done verything we've promised. We just didn't have the horses for the stretch."

SPORTS

Hockey Teams Take Dead Aim At Detroit's Seven-Year Run

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK— (NEA) —Better balanced, the National Hockey League this winter hopes to break the most devastating hammerlock ever fastened on a game by a professional team.

That would be the Detroit Red Wings' seven-year reign as champions. There's never been anything like it in pro sports.

The Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, patsies for a decade, are flexing this muscles, you see. Maurice Richard is in for a full run with the Montreal Canadiens. The other contenders have been strengthened by trades comebacks and recruits.

In two or three years, the circuit will make more sense. By then it should be composed of eight clubs instead of six. Pittsburgh has broken ground for an arena. The Cleveland Arena accommodates 10,000.

Detroit always faces off like an uninspired outfit, so no one was fooled when Jack Adams' squad dropped its first three outings, although this is the worst start the Red Wings have made. The Red Wings perennially pick up momentum. They retain the four old standbys, Gordie Howe, Capt. Ted Lindsay, Red Kelly and the unsung forward, Marty Pevelich.

• • •

Adams, the Red Wings' head man for 28 years, is the Branch Rickey of hockey—no sentiment. Terry Sawchuk led the NHL in shutouts last season with 12, won the Vezina Trophy, which goes to the goalie permitting the fewest number of goals, in three of the last four campaigns. But Glen Hall had come along, so, like Harry Lumley before him. Sawchuk was traded—to the Boston Bruins. Lumley currently is with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lorne Ferguson scored 20 goals last season and was the Bruins' lone scorer as they shut out Toronto the other night, 2-0.

Defenseman Tom Horton is back with the Leafs on two good legs.

Chicago hopes to move with four acquired from Detroit—Tough Tom Leswick, Glen Skov, Johnny Wilson and Benny Woit. The Hawks have an experienced goalie in Al Rollins and a remarkable recruit in 20-year-old Hank Ciesla, who was the junior scoring champion. Dick Irvin, the coach obtained from Montreal, won't make mistakes.

• • •

Phil Watson works on the old Leo Durocher theory that nice guys don't win. Watson was quick with the needle and the Rangers broke in with two victories on the road. They hadn't done that since 1941, the last time the Blue Shirts finished on top. The Rangers beat the Black Hawks 7-4, which is more goals than they scored in any one of 70 games a year ago.

Wally Hergesheimer returned after breaking the same leg two years in succession. The Rangers have more punch and are stronger at center ice with Bronco Horvath and Dave Creighton, both acquired from Detroit and furnishing additional evidence that the Red Wings are perfectly willing to share the wealth.

Horvath played with Edmonton of the Western League. The American League likes to feel that it is Triple A, but there is some question about it being any faster than the Western, generally considered Double A.

Regardless of classification, hockey, the glittering body contact game, requires only promotion to follow American football as an attraction during the winter months.

Prince Of Wales Tie Junior Soccer Lead

COLLEGIANS BLANK FEILDIANS 6-0

Prince of Wales scored once in the first half and struck for four goals in the second yesterday, as they blanked Bishop Feild 5-0 in a junior collegiate football fixture at the Feildian Grounds.

The victory vaulted the Red and Blue into a first place tie with St. Bon's who have played one game less. They meet later in the week after St. Bon's have played Feild.

Dave Bugden led the Collegians' attack with two goals. Single goals were counted by Russ Taylor, Alec Andrews and Alf Pike. Goalie Sterling Hoddinnott, P.W.C.'s lanky ball hawk, earned his shutout by stopping Feild on their few offensive thrusts.

Marksman Bugden broke the scoreless deadlock after about twenty minutes had gone in the first half. That was all the scoring in the first half as P.W.C. took a 1-0 lead.

Second half was only minutes old when Russ Taylor caromed a hard drive off Feildian fullback Tulk. Dave Bugden's second goal came at the ten minute mark when he drilled a long shot on a breakaway that caught the inside corner to give Prince of Wales a 3-0 lead.

In the dying minutes of the game the Collegians were awarded indirect kick on the Feildian eighteen yard line. With all the Blues lined up on the goal line the pass came out to Alec Andrews who bulleted a close-in shot through the bunched Feildian line to make it 4-0.

Final goal of the game came during a scrimmage in the final minute in which Alf Pike poked in the fifth Prince of Wales goal and kept his squad in line for the championship.

Doby To White Sox For Chico & Busby In Big Player Deal

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox' 18-year search for a reliable clean-up hitter apparently had ended Tuesday when they obtained slugging Larry Doby from the Cleveland Indians.

In their biggest deal since the departure of trade master Frank Lane to the St. Louis Carinals several weeks ago, the Sox gave the Indians shortstop Chico Carrasquel and outfielder Jim Busby. It was a straight player transaction.

The Sox, who have finished third in the American League race the last three years, long have had a weakness in the No. 4 spot in the batting order. They haven't had a consistent long-ball hitter since Zeke Bonura drove 440 runs across home plate for them from 1934 to 1937.

FIRST NEGRO

Doby, the first Negro player in the American League, potentially fills the bill. The 30-year-old veteran of eight full seasons with the tribe has a major league lifetime batting mark of .286 and a slugging average of .502.

He has blasted 202 homers and driven in 731 runs. Last season, despite a wrist ailment, he hit .291 in 131 games, including 26 homers, 17 doubles and five tripics. His RBI total was 75.

In 1952 Doby led the league in homers, with 32, and runs scored, 154. His 32 homers and 126 RBIs were tops in 1954. He has made the all star game every year since 1949.

Carrasquel, once regarded as one of the finest shortstops in the league, slowed down this season both defensively and at the plate. He hit .256 and drove in 52 runs. Busby, obtained from Washington, was fleet in the outfield but batted only .239.

Curtis Widens Lead In 1-0 Senior High Victory

Curtis Academy took a two point lead in the senior race of the High School Football League yesterday afternoon by shading second place St. Pat's 1-0 at the Memorial Grounds.

The game marked the sixth shutout of the season for Henley Moores, Curtis Academy goaltender, who has been scored against on only two occasions this season.

The Curtisans lead second place St. Pat's by two points and are three points in front of third place Macpherson with two games left to play. Curtis has ten points, St. Pat's eight and the Scots seven.

Only goal of yesterday's game resulted from a three man play at the midway mark of the first half. The corner shot was taken by outside right Gordon Rice and the ball was cleared to centre half Clayton Collins who booted the sphere to the head of captain Maurice Martin who nudged it into the nets.

The fighting little men of St. Pat's put on a strong offensive in the latter part of the second half to cause some anxious moments for goalie Moore of Curtis. As darkness slowly settled in Moore was called upon to make some brilliant stops to preserve his well-deserved shutout.

Leaf Scout Chief Joins The Rangers

NEW YORK (CP)—Jack Humphries, for the last six years head of Toronto Maple Leafs' setup for scouting hockey talent among minors, has been appointed head eastern scout for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Murray Patrick, Rangers general manager, making the announcement Tuesday said the 48-year-old Humphries succeeds Carson Cooper, who died last summer.

Vitale Arrives In City Today

Coach Phil Vitale, who has been hired by the senior hockey league and the stadium commission as coach for senior and minor hockey players, is schduled to arrive in the city this afternoon.

Vitale, a 34-year-old hockey coach and defenceman, was recommended to city officials by Ken Davison, chief scout of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

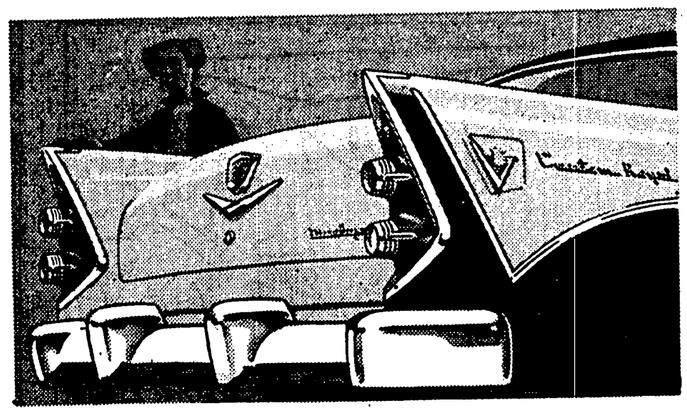
Bringing new flair and function to the Forward Look

Most exciting car you ever saw is the flashing new Custom Royal—finest car in the glamourous Dodge line for 1956.

Jewel-brilliant from sparkling grille to glowing rear lights, set in a bold frame of chrome. So long and lithe . . . so low and sleek . . . so trim and taut in every gleaming contour.

Full of fire and flash with an all-new Super Red Ram V-8 engine. Full of exciting surprises like the push-button operation of the new PowerFlite automatic transmission.

But sample the thrill yourself. Take a new Custom Royal out on the road for a brand-new kind of driving pleasure.



New Flight-Sweep Styling!

Rear fender lines sweep gracefully backward and skyward, then angle sharply down to frame the jetlike taillights. Long, classic lines from tip of hood to taillights emphasize length and sleekness.

COME IN TO LOOK . . . GO OUT AND RIDE . . . IN THIS BRILLIANT NEW PERFORMER. YOUR DODGE-DE SOTO DEALER HAS A DEMONSTRATOR WAITING FOR YOU NOW!

What Of The Future Of An Important Industrial Community?

History might easily be said to be a mirror whereby a world, a nation, a country, or a community can see itself in the correct perspective.

If this is so, then let us who are deeply concerned about the future, pause a short while and reflect our thoughts back through the years and see just where our failures and successes lie.

It is a known fact that ever since iron was discovered many hundreds of years ago, it has proved itself to be of vital importance in the life of man: alongside this vital important industry, grew the equally important centres of production—centres such as Bell Island.

Here on this all important island are approximately twelve thousand average type of people They are a wonderful type of people who have their likes and dislikes, their good points and bad points. They work hard and live such lives as are the average working people. Their lives are actually governed by the larger forces in the world, known as "supply and demand."

If the world moves in its said cycle of War. Prosperity. Peace and Depression these are the people who feel its effects first. Of course there are people who will profit by other people's lives are governed by the same worldly forces. True. Yet not as soon, or as often as the people who produce the raw material for the consumers market. One has to realize conditions under which they live, before they can pass judgment.

The history of Newfoundland has been one of "Ups and Downs" more downs than ups—as has been proven. Yet we cling to the community with confidence and the future of Bell Island is something that we can never feel assured of.

Here on Bell Island there are many—far too many—deplorable conditions, for such a large and very important production center.

The government has almost flatly refused to aid in anyway the community. True there has been a little aid given here and there, yet nothing worth accounting for. Take for example the road conditions on this island; the writer ventures to say that nowhere in the whole of Canada do people have to walk on, or drive over, such mud paths, or dusty trails, punctured with what one might easily call a "shell hole," or pot hole.

Again there is the horrid fact that a mining center with a population of about 12,000 people have the barest possible essentials in medical aid. Yet throughout different parts of this island province cottage hospitals are being constructed for many of our more fortunate countrymen (hospitals which are needed no one denies this) yet the people engaged in a far more hazardous occupation have only a small company surgery.

Again there are many problems one has to take into consideration when dealing with the lives and occupations of people who are engaged in producing the raw materials of a country. There is that all important question of labour and management—labour relations some people may call it. But looking at Bell Island, and then at other certain towns in this province of ours, who are likewise engaged in producing raw materials, one is left to wonder if all the blame falls on the Government, or should part of the blame rest on some other shoulders. After all, the saying "We get out of the world just what we put into it"—might also well apply to business corporations. Its never just a question of taking all we can get, with a never satisfied need for more. It should be, of course, as other producing towns in Newfoundland have it. They take something out, it's true, but it's also true they do their level best to help the community concerned.

So it is then that the people on Bell Island are left to wonder what it's all about. They pay large taxes. They spend their earnings in this country. They help to bring in large sums of money in royalties. They further the business corporations, yet seem always to be on the wrong end of the stick. Simply because there is friction between two political parties they receive little aid—because of different views between labour and management—the community receives very little in return.

It's high time that the "Powers which be" began to consider the ordinary people through whom all things are made possible. The government and other parties concerned may one day realize all to suddenly that the power of the vote still holds, and that the rights of the individuals who go together to comprise a community are just as sacred today, as when they were first instituted. For wasn't it once said by one of the world's greatest statesmen and leaders that government "of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish."

DEMOCRACY.

The Bell Island Bus Franchise

Discussions regarding the granting of an exclusive bus franchise, to operate on Bell Island are expected to re-open again in the very near future.

The Wabana Town Council who have been concerned about an adequate Bus Service for some time announced over the weekend that an application for the franchise from one local operator and a proposed system has been outlined to them.

However, before any commitments can be made by the Council the matter will be discussed with the Public Utilities Board, and it is expected that a meeting between all parties will be arranged sometime this week.

It is understood that besides a regular schedule around the Island provisions are made for school buses and a schedule to tie in with the change of shifts at the mines is considered in the application.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William Stone on the attainment of their silver wedding anniversary which they celebrated Saturday, October 22. They were married at St. Michael's Church, Bell Island.

Activity On Waterfront Is Slowing Down

Activity along the waterfront for the past several days has been somewhat slow as a result of the severe weather we have been experiencing. The S.S. Wabana, one of Dosco's ore carriers, arrived here Monday morning from Sydney, N.S. It took the ship 51 hours to make the trip, which under normal conditions takes 36 hours. The ship sailed again midnight Monday with an ore cargo for Sydney. At present there is one foreign ship in port and another due to arrive.

During the storm the ferry Frederick W. Carter was tied up at Portugal Cove owing to the temporary docking facilities not being able to handle her, but the "Maneco" and "Kipawo" made their regular trips.

Funeral Of Mrs. H. Fitzgerald

The funeral of the late Mrs. Hannah Fitzgerald, who passed away at the General Hospital on Thursday, Oct. 20, took place from her son's residence at Bell Island Monday morning to St. Michael's Church. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Rideout's Undertaker's Service, with Mr. Bert Rideout undertaker and the following pall-bearers: Messrs. Leo Ryan, Brendan Ryan, Edward Laurie, Edward Gorman, Albert Whelan and Sidney Conran.

Requiem Mass at the Church was celebrated by Monsignor Bartlett, D.P., P.P. Interment was in the R. C. Cemetery.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is survived by her husband, three sons and two daughters, to all of whom deepest sympathy is extended.

Hockey Notes

The Bell Island Arena re-opened on Thursday night. A new freezing plant has been installed and a good ice surface is sure to be available to skaters during the current season. Local hockeyists will soon be getting down to business and making ready for the All-Nfld. Championships next winter.

Joe Byrne will not be coaching the Islanders this winter. However, it seems pretty certain that another coach will be coming here. There is a strong, but unofficial, rumour afloat here at the present time that Frank Bowman is interested in taking over the local team. This has not been confirmed nor denied so far. It is reported also that there are others prominent in Newfoundland hockey circles who would come here if given the opportunity.

Canada Leads World In Labelling Textiles

OTTAWA, (CP)—Canada has decided to take a world lead in regulating the labelling of textile products to protect consumers against possible deception.

Starting Jan. 1, textile goods offered for sale in Canada cannot be labelled hand-knitted or hand-woven if they are partly woven or knitted by machine.

If the product is made of more than one fibre-such as a mixture of wool and nylon—all the fibres must be listed on the label in order of weight predominance.

Fibres making up less than five per cent of the product cannot be listed unless the supplier clearly indicates they are being used to reinforce particular parts of the fabric.

WILL LABEL IMPORTS

The new federal regulations, announced by Trade Minister Howe Friday, will apply not only on goods manufactured in Canada but also on those imported for Canadian sale.

Officials said they believe Canada is the first country to impose such labelling controls. They said it will not be mandatory for all textile goods sold in Canada to be labelled, but it labels are used, they must conform to the new rules.

That could mean that such major suppliers as the United States, Britain and Japan may have to change their labels to conform to Canadian requirements before their goods can be sold over Canadian counters.

TIME FOR CHANGEOVER

But officials indicated they will give manufacturers plenty of time to make label changes. There will be no immediate hauling of persons to court when the regulations become effective next January.

However, if abuses of the controls continue for an indefinite period, the government may open prosecutions under the National Trade Mark and True Marketing Act. Individuals found guilty would be liable to a maximum fine of $1,000; corporations, to $3,000.

The regulations were worked out through the co-operation of consumers—particularly the Canadian Association of Consumers—retailers, garment manufacturers, textile producers and the government.

ASKED BY TARIFF BOARD

The tariff board also called for better labelling. In its report on the Canadian wool tariff inquiry last February, the board suggested more information be made available, on the fibre content of blended cloths "so that consumers may within reason identify what they are buying."

The Canadian Association of Consumers argued before the board that the Canadian wool industry should create prestige for its products through promotion and better labelling. It claimed that some Canadian fabrics were being labelled as "imported," deceiving consumers and strengthening acceptance of imported goods.

The new federal regulations emphasise the labels on products "shall not be designed in any manner that is calculated or likely to mislead or deceive."

He is a very impressed with the changes that have taken place in our great industrial centre and is enjoying every moment of his visit.

Mr. Doyle is the brother of Mrs. Gus Nugent and regrets very much not being able to see her, as she is now residing in Galt, Ontario, another nephew, Mr. Edward Nugent, resides at the Mines.

Mr. Doyle is planning on visiting some old friends and acquaintances before returning to his home by the Northern Ranger around the end of this week.

APRON ALLEY

In a community where the majority of men eat one meal every day on the job, "what to put in the lunch-box" is a question which nearly every housewife asks herself day after day. To keep that lunch-box meal nutritious and attractive does indeed require a bit of planning, and since the sandwich is the mainstay of the lunch-box, let's consider a few recipes and suggested combinations for sandwich fillings:

This Cheese Spread will make 3 cups of filling and will keep quite a while if kept in tight jars and stored in a refrigerator or cool place.

1/3 cup butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup white sugar
3 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt

And for any sliced meat sandwich, this Tomato-Cheese Spread will make a wonderful addition. Just spread paste over the sliced meat before adding the second slice of bread. You'll get cheers from the toter of the lunch box.

TOMATO-CHEESE SPREAD

1 large can tomatoes (28 oz.)
2 tablespoons salt
½ cup white sugar
¾ cup cider vinegar
1 medium onion, chopped
1 sweet green pepper, chopped or ½ cup sweet green pickle, chopped
1 tablespoon dry mustard
½ cup corn starch
½ cup grated cheese.

Combine in saucepan tomatoes, salt, suar and ½ cup vinegar; heat to boiling; strain through sieve. Put onion and green pepper or pickle through food chopper; combine with tomato mixture in top of double boiler; heat thoroughly. Mix mustard and corn starch to a paste with remaining ¼ cup vinegar; stir into hot mixture, cook over direct heat till smooth and thick. Cover: cook over boiling water for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; add grated cheese; stir till melted. Seal in sterile jars. Makes 2½ pints, and will keep for weeks if kept well chilled.

On Saturday we will pass along a few recipes for cookies that travel well in a lunch-box. Cheerio until then.

The 'Miracle of the Church of All Nations

EDITOR'S NOTE: The National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. will honor Los Angeles' unique Church of All Nations with a special citation to be awarded at the National Conference on the Churches and Social Welfare in Cleveland Nov. 1. The following dispatch describing the church's All Nations Foundation was written by a member of the foundation staff.

By LOUIS L. WILSON

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Come to Methodism's All Nations Foundation in Los Angeles' crowded wholesale district. Come up to my office on the second floor rear of the Adult Club House, standing just across the alleys from the grim, brick walls of the Foundation's main unit. Look out of this window.

Over there across those wooden fences leaning in drunken zigzags and those trash-littered back yards—just look at that crowded block of decrepit, two-story frame houses cut off by the walls of that wholesale warehouse. Beyond the warehouse you'd find more decaying houses; then another warehouse.

Overcrowding here is the highest in any residential area in Los Angeles County. The educational level is the lowest, the median income less than $1,000 per year. There are more arrests for vice within a four-block radius of All Nations than in any other part of Los Angeles, and adult crime rate tops the county.

Once juvenile delinquency was also a serious problem. But, since the founding of All Nations, it has dropped 83 per cent, and the drop continues. Seen against the social background, this is nothing short of a minor miracle.

* * *

Nor is it a police-type miracle of mere repression. It is the miracle of creating an atmosphere in which boys and girls learn to delight in wholesome fellowship, fair play, mutual helpfulness and personal achievement.

Such an atmosphere can be created only by leadership at once consecrated and intelligent. It was brought to pass first by All Nations' founder, Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, now one of Methodism's outstanding bishops. It was upheld for a quarter of a century by his successor, Dr. Robert A. McKibben, now director of city work for Methodism's National Board of Missions.

SPIRIT OF INTERNATIONAL HARMONY reigns at All Nations Foundation Centre recreation in Los Angeles. Foundation embraces everything from a boys' club to a full-scale medical clinic.

It is being continued by the Rev. John L. Mixon, who was called to become executive director of All Nations Foundation from his former post as Professor of Church Social Work at McCormick Theological Seminary.

These men have established here the methods of group work under dedicated Christian leaders with professional skill. Under such guidance, more than 1,200 boys and girls find their places each year in the many clubs.

* * *

In these small ,intimate groups operating under officers democratically elected, kids find recognition, affection and posts of importance in a small but vitally wholesome world. What is more sharing in sports and learning crafts in racially mixed groups under All Nations' own racially mixed staff, one of democracy's most traitorous prejudices simply evaporates.

Yet many a boy and girl comes to All Nations so warped by bad home life or destructive neighborhood influence as to find it difficult to adjust to club life in the scattered sessions of the normal program. Then is when the special values of a week's intensive living at camp show up most clearly, a week made possible through the help provided by "camperships" contributed by outside friends.

An illustration of the good camp can accomplish is in a story told in this year's appeals for "campership" funds.

"We honestly doubted the wisdom of taking Johnny to camp," writes Wallace Durham. "Hurt by the race prejudice of previous communities, he wanted only to get even—destroy, smash rules, fight. But, if left here, he'd get in trouble sure. Besides, in camp you live with a boy. Sometimes he comes in the middle of the night, too scared to go through the pines to the latrine alone Then, as he stumbles through the dark, your protecting hand on his shoulder, he confides troubles he wouldn't think of confiding in the day. Anyway, we took Johnny along.

"Unable to believe camp comradeship real, he had it rough at first. But by time to thank sponsors, he wrote, "I like everything about camp. . . food. . . swimming. . but I like the camp name, All Nations, best, because that means brotherhood."

"Johnny came back from Korea with an honorable discharge and the Purple Heart."

Among the kids of All Nations, that work of imparting the breath of God—of creating in the divine image—still goes on

Leave Your Auto At Home

(Financial Post, Oct. 15th.)

Want to see Canada's 10th province? Here are some tips for tourists, who are being welcomed in increasing numbers from various parts of the Canadian mainland.

Leave your car at home. You can come to the island by steamer from North Sydney, N.S., or fly in if the weather is reasonably clear. Natives say wait until late June. The weather is "terrible" during the spring.

Plan well ahead and reserve your accommodation early. Until the accommodation problem is solved, space is at a premium. Businessmen are pouring into the island and know that they must reserve well ahead, particularly in major centres like St. John's, Grand Falls and Corner Brook.

Remember that the province is named NEW-FOUND-LAND, accented equally on all syllables. Don't call it Newfie if you are from the mainland.

Be prepared to spend more on food than you would expect to pay on the mainland and have plenty of patience. Newfoundlanders have long since learned that nature has placed many obstacles in the way of free and easy movement. The train—facetiously called "The Bullet" doesn't travel quickly because of the difficult terrain.

On Saturday (in St. John's at any rate) buy some cheese and crackers or any other food. Almost all eating places are closed Sunday. A few spots open in the evening.

Nights are cool, even in summer. No frilly dresses for ladies traveling. And make sure that some clothing is waterproof. Newfoundlanders wear rubber boots, even in builtup centres like St. John's. To an inland Canadian, there are no words which can be found to describe the "degree of wetness" which can prevail on the island.

Special liquor permits are available for visitors at 50 cents, permitting purchase of three bottles a week and also purchase of beer. Or visitors can write ahead and have liquid supplies ready for them at the camp they are visiting. It can be difficult to obtain some particular brands of rye whiskey but good Scotch and rum are always on hand.

Bring lots of pennies. A special tax at the retail level is mildly bothersome to visitors from areas which do not levy retail taxes like Ontario.

Plenty of souvenirs are available, made by Eskimos in Labrador and residents of the outports. These are sold by such agencies as NONIA, Newfoundland Outport Nursing and Industrial Association, Jubilee Guild which is affiliated with Women's Institutes and Associated Country Women of the World. Eskimo carvings and sealskin-coated dolls are wonderful momentoes although expensive. Hand-woven and knitted goods are also attractive.

Obtain railway and steamship time-tables. Schedules change in midsummer. Harvey and Co. are the major ticket-handlers with agencies scattered across the island. They handle TCA business and are always ready to help the traveler rearrange transportation. If you plan to do much flying — even onto and off the island—be prepared to rearrange your plans.

Salmon licenses cost $5 a day, $20 for two weeks or $30 for the season with the holder able to fish for salmon, sea trout and other types of trout. This is required in rivers. A trout license can be obtained for $5 but no fishing allowed in rivers.

Certain hunting weapons are prohibited but a bow and arrow is permitted for moose and caribou. Open seasons and other regulations change so check with the authorities.

The place to get information is the Newfoundland Tourist Development Division, Department of Economic Development, Fort Townshend Square, P.O. Box H-163. St. John's.

They have turned out an excellent pamphlet that tells the visitor where to fish or hunt, what accommodation is available in the areas and at what prices.

If you plan to get to Labrador, you must either fly by Eastern Provincial Airways at Gander or go by CNR coastal steamer. again reserving early.

You'll enjoy the pleasant Irish brogue used by many descendents of Irish settlers. There are also many accents usually associated with the border country between England and Scotland.

This year St. John's businessmen have agreed that retail stores will be open Saturday and closed Mondays while wholesale business houses close Saturday and open Monday.

A warning. Between 1 p.m. and 2.30 p.m., almost everybody goes home for lunch. Tea is at 6 p.m., a la Britain. Newfoundlanders like their home life and doors are always open to visitors. The atmosphere is wonderful for a harried Montrealer or Torontonian.

Don't get involved in a political argument and don't try to tell how wonderful mainland methods are in your line of business. Confederation is still a hot potato in major centres—particularly among businessmen. And Newfoundland has a host of problems which no mainland businessman has ever had to cope with. The province was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. The bulk of Newfoundlanders can trace their family history back for almost 200 years.

You'll hear talk about "Canadian side" and "American side." This is a carry-over from the war years and the result of establishment of U.S. air bases.

Enjoy yourself. The island is colorful. It has a world outlook that few mainland Canadians realize. In, pre-Confederation days its business was with the U.S., the Caribbean and the U.K. and sitting astride world trade routes, its outlook is different. Accept it as being "different" yet making a major contribution to the development of Canada.

DECIDED ELECTIONS

The House of Representatives decided three presidential elections: Thomas Jefferson over Aaron Burr; John Quincy Adams over Andrew Jackson; and Rutherford B. Hayes over Samuel Tilden.

The tie shoe is back in favor. But this time it's light, flexible, youthful and flattering.

New Postal Regulations

In order that the public may have more time in which to familiarize themselves with the new Postal regulation governing the permissible minimum size of envelopes for transmission through the mails and to use up supplies on hand, there has been an extension of the effective date of this regulation to Feb. 1, 1956, it was announced by the Post Office Department today.

The new regulation, which puts into effect a convention of the Universal Postal Union at the last Congress in Brussels, provides that no envelopes may be accepted for mailing which is smaller in size than 4 inches long and 2¾ inches wide. It was pointed out that while possible with very small envelopes are usually much larger than the dimensions mentioned, many types of greeting cards, invitations and announcements are enclosed in very small envelopes.

The reason for the adoption of the convention by the Universal Postal Union was the difficulty experienced by most postal administrations in handling these very small envelopes, due to the increasing mechanical complexity of mail handling operations. Most letter mail, for instance, is machine cancelled, but this is not possible with very samll envelopes which must be set aside and hand-cancelled. These enveloped also, due to their small size, often become entrapped in larger pieces of mail, with consequent loss or delay in delivery.

The Post Office Department has been in contact with envelope manufacturers over the past two years with a view to securing their assistance in discontinuing the manufacture of these items and has received their wholehearted co-operation. In view of the fact that this was thought to be very effective, it had been decided to fix Oct. 1 as the effective date of the new regulation, but it has now been found that there are a considerable number in circulation. It is to avoid loss and inconvenience to the public, therefore, that extension has been made to Feb. 1.

In order to assist the Postal Service in the meantime, however, the public is asked to use wherever possible envelopes that are at least the minimum size specified, 4 by 2¾ inches.

Lectures On Mink Ranching

On Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Boys' Home at Whitbourne, Dr. A. H. Kennedy will begin a series of lectures on the principles of mink ranching. Lectures will be held twice weekly on Tuesday and Friday evenings and will continue throughout the winter months.

While the course in mink ranching is being put on especially for the 23 men who are presently apprenticed to ranchers at Dildo, other people in the area who are interested in mink ranching are invited and will be welcome at these lectures. While there will be no charge made for the course, all those attending are requested to provide themselves with notebooks.

Dr. Kennedy who is presently employed by the Department of Mines and Resources as a Veterinarian for the mink ranching project at Dildo has had long years of experience in fur farming and comes to Newfoundland direct from the Ontario Veterinary College where he was employed as a member of the faculty of the staff of that University. He is therefore exceptionally well qualified to lecture on the subject of mink ranching and it is proposed to cover all aspects of raising mink, including quality of foundation stock, breeding, feeding and the preparation of pelts for market. The course will also include information on ranch buildings and equipment.

With the general interest that is presently being displayed in mink ranching in the Dildo area of Trinity Bay, the series of lectures to be given by Dr. Kennedy should be well attended. As stated above, the general public is invited as well as those presently employed on ranches in the area. Any person who is contemplating the establishment of a ranch will undoubtedly obtain the success of this enterprise.

SOME DIET

If a human family ate in proportion to a family of birds, the daily grocery list would include something like 50 loaves of bread, 25 pounds of hamburger, 30 doughnuts, 10 pounds of spinach, six heads of lettuce, and one gallon of ice cream.

Grand Bank News

Grand Bank:

Inshore Fishery Closes for Season

GRAND BANK—Fishing conditions have not been so good in recent days. The inshore catch from Lawn to here has been much smaller since the big breeze and fishermen think that the fish have now moved into deeper offshore waters. Weather conditions have not been very good either for fish curing and Grand Bank Fisheries Ltd., still have a considerable quantity of fish on the beaches.

The Pauline C. Winters is now in port discharging a cargo of dried codfish which was loaded at northern ports. This is the first time in years that such a full cargo of dried fish has been landed here and is also the first time in this correspondent's memory that a local concern has purchased fish in the northern section of the province. It all goes to show what a comparatively small quantity of dried codfish is available these days along the coast. We understand that Grand Bank Fisheries Limited are considering purchasing additional quantities of fish north this year.

Major C. W. Carter, Federal member of Parliament for Burin-Burgeo, was in town recently for a day, after completing a tour of the riding by motor boat. He was accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Carter. When here, Major Carter met with the Town Council and discussed with the members certain matters.

Major Carter advised that there was considerable improvement in the economic condition of the riding particularly in the Burin Peninsula section. The fishery was good this year although in some sections very few fishermen were fishing but the various fish plants along the coast were quite active and the offshore draggers landed big catches. He felt that there is still an urgent need for additional fish plants in Fortune Bay to look after the fishermen in that area. Unemployment Insurance for fishermen is still being actively pursued by Major Carter at Ottawa and considerable progress has been made towards getting these benefits extended to our fishermen.

Vessel captains and owners are disturbed over the coal loading situation which exists at present at North Sydney. One vessel which is in port here now with a cargo of coal had to wait almost a fortnight at North Sydney before she could load and other vessels are being delayed a week or more before they can get cargo. Apart from the economic side of such delays there is also the fact that householders are sometimes without coal for periods due to the delay in cargo arrivals. Here, for instance, over the past weekend no coal was to be bought, although two local vessels should have arrived, discharged, and sailed again under normal conditions. The situation is something similar to that which has prevailed in previous years, and although every year promises are made to have such loading bottlenecks remedied it seems that the same situation develops every autumn for Newfoundland coal coasters.

Guild Tea

The ladies of the Frazer Guild held an afternoon tea party in Frazer Hall on last Wednesday afternoon. A fairly large number of people patronized the event and about eighty dollars was realized from the event.

Proceeds are being used by the ladies of the Guild towards defraying the cost of the new chairs which the group has installed in the Frazer Hall, and which are quite an improvement over the old wooden seats.

Car Accident

A taxi, owned and operated by Cheeseman's Taxi of Burin, received considerable damage last Friday evening on the Terrenceville highway. The vehicle went over a bridge and dug head on into the rock-strewn river bottom.

The accident occurred a short distance from Swift Current towards the Terrenceville Junction. It is thought that the steering mechanism failed and the car went over the edge of the bridge and came to rest with the rear end still suspended on the bridge and the front end amongst the rocks in the stream. Two occupants of the vehicle received only minor injuries although the car was badly damaged.

Fortunately the stream was shallow and prevented a possible drowning tragedy.

Sea Cadets

At their last parade, held last week, the Sea Cadets of RCSCC "Atlantic" were visited by the new area officer for Newfoundland, Lt. Inman, who has recently succeeded Lt. Com. A. G. Ayre in that office. The area officer was accompanied by Sub-Lt. Dunphy.

The area officer inspected the Corps. Also present were the President of the local branch of the Navy League and the Chairman of the Sea Cadet committees. The area officer also inspected the Corps at Burin and Marystown and expressed himself as quite pleased with the work and progress of the Sea Cadet movement on the Burin Peninsula.

This year "Atlantic" has several new Cadets enrolled and at present the strength of the Corps is nearing forty.

Moderator Visits

The congregation of the United Church were pleased and honoured by a visit of the Moderator, the Right Reverend George Dorey, D.D., on Sunday. The distinguished Church dignitary arrived here over the weekend, being met by a deputation at Swift Current and driven here.

A very large congregation attended the evening service at which the Moderator was guest preacher. The service was also the annual Thanksgiving Service of the congregation, and it was conducted by the Minister, Rev. Dr. J. L. Reynolds. In his sermon, the Moderator took as his topic "Responsibility of the Individual," and left a thought provoking message with the congregation.

During his visit here the Moderator visited the U.C. Academy on Monday morning. On Sunday evening, following the Church service, a representative group of the congregation were at the parsonage to meet the Church leader.

On Sunday morning Dr. Dorey was guest preacher at the Fortune United Church.

Salvation Army Harvest Festival

The annual Harvest Festival of the Salvation Army was celebrated on Thanksgiving Day. This year's event was very successful, we were informed by Major George Wheeler, officer in charge of the local Corps.

Major Wheeler said that the Sunday Thanksgiving Services were exceptionally well attended and that offerings this year were above those of the previous years. The harvest festival supper and auction held in the Young People's Hall on Monday evening were also well patronized and receipts from this endeavour exceeded two hundred and eighty dollars.

Thanks to the BBC

LONDON—During the Second World War many American radio reporters broadcast home from the BBC's studios and used BBC facilities. As a remembrance of the friendliness and co-operation of those hazardous days the reporters recently subscribed for a plaque to be given to the BBC, a suggestion first put forward in the "Christian Science Monitor" by Richard L. Strout, who was a wartime reporter in London. The plaque was presented on their behalf by His Excellency the United States Ambassador, Mr. Winthrop Aldrich, G.B.E.(and received for the BBC by the chairman of its Board of Governors, Sir Alexander Cadogan, Godfrey Talbot, himself a BBC war reporter, attended the ceremony in the Council Chamber at Broadcasting House, and said that to anyone who was engaged in wartime radio newscasting in London the occasion brought back memories of momentous bulletins and eye-witness reports that went out from underground studios in London, often when blitzes were going on overhead.

Mr. Aldrich handed the plaque to Sir Alexander Cadogan in the presence of BBC chiefs, American radio men and Mr. Sol Taishoff, editor of "Broadcasting Telecasting" which helped to organize the gift. The plaque bears an inscription written by Edward R. Murrow — the American commentator whose frequent wartime broadcasts from Britain beginning "This—is London" are still vividly remembered—recording that it was placed in Britain by "those American radio reporters privileged to broadcast from Britain during her 'finest hour'. After presenting the plaque Mr. Aldrich said, "Those wartime news reports to the American people aroused our profound admiration of the British people, for the way they stood up undismayed under fearful destruction. The news and analysis of the news which came to us from these studios helped us to understand where our duty lay—which was to join in the fight at your side. Therefore this plaque signifies, in addition to the gratitude of its donors, the gratitude as well of the whole American people to BBC and the people of Great Britain."

In reply Sir Alexander Cadogan said "The operations commemorated by this plaque fall into a natural sequence. They arose directly from the friendly relationships established between the BBC and the American broadcasting as a whole in the years before the War. We in the BBC recognize the tremendous value in the interests of Anglo-American friendship of collaboration in the fields of radio and television and we look forward with confidence to a continuance and further development of this happy relationship in the years ahead."

Women's Association

Bi-Annual Meeting St. John's Presbytery

The bi-annual meeting of the St. John's Presbytery Women's Association of the United Church of Canada was held on Wednesday, Oct. 12, in Wesley United Church, under the chairmanship of the President, Mrs. Lewis Bartlett. The meeting opened with Worship Service, conducted by Mrs. Ambrose King, assisted by Mrs. Berdard King, who read the Scripture, followed by prayer by Mrs. Donald LeGrow, all delegates of the Bauline W.A.

The President, Mrs. Lewis Bartlett, then pointed out that the W.A. was the Mother of the Church and each member had a part to play in the bringing in of God's Kingdom.

Delegates and visitors were welcomed by Mrs. T. Roberts of Wesley Association. A reply to this was given by Mrs. (Rev.) R. N. Rowsell of Brigus.

Mrs. Allan Wilkinson of Old Perlican rendered a beautiful message in song entitled "Free as the Bird."

Roll call and minutes of last meeting were read by Mrs. D. Butler, in place of Mrs. H. Gulli-, who, we regret to say, was unavoidably absent through illness. It is the wish of the St. John's Presbytery W.A. that Mrs. Gulliford will have a speedy recovery.

The theme song, "Let the Beauty of Jesus be Seen in Me", was then sung by the whole Association.

Mrs. E. Payne, who attended the 15th annual meeting of the Dominion Council as a delegate of the Presbytery, gave her impressions of her visit. The theme was, "The Church on Fire Beginning With Me". She gave a very full description of each day's work, especially of all the places visited and all inspiring addresses heard. She said the Dominion Council stressed the point that young groups should receive co-operation from adult groups, and that the W.A. is not only interested in raising money, but its plant is to help deepen the spiritual life of the church.

Mrs. H. Winsor then held a questionnaire in which nine members took part. This gave a broader view and some valuable information on the different offices of the W.A.

Reports brought in by local Women's Associations showed good work being done.

It was proposed that greetings be sent from this meeting to Mrs. (Dr.) A. S. Butt, who is convalescing following an operation.

Singing of the Doxology brought the afternoon session to a close.

All members and visitors retired to Wesley Lecture Hall where a delicious tea was served by the four combined Church groups of the W.A. During the social hour, greetings were brought by Dr. A. S. Butt from the Men's St. John's Presbytery that was meeting at Topsail that day. He referred to Rev. Ira Curtis, D.D., being greatly missed from the ranks; by Mrs. H. R. Luscombe, President of the St. John's Presbyterial W.M.S., and by Mrs. (Rev.) McCabe, President of Carbonear Presbytery W.A.

The meeting re-convened at 8 p.m., with Mrs. L. Crummey conducting the Devotional Service, assisted by Mrs. D. Butler leading the Scripture reading in unison. Mrs. L. Crummey game an inspiring meditation based on "Faith and Trust."

The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. W. Langille, B.A., of Cochrane Street Centennial Church, who delivered a very inspiring and challenging address and pointed out that the W.A. was a great fellowship movement reaching out to help the church and its members to acquire a faith through Christian experience, and to help other organizations of the church and to be true to our endeavours.

Miss Burry gave an informative talk on the great Evangelistic Campaign which is being held in November.

"Let's Sing" by Mrs. (Rev.) R. N. Rowsell of Brigus showed how the same hymn could be sung to three or four different tunes and bring a great blessing. This was enjoyed by all. Mrs. (Rev.) Rowsell acted as pianist at the afternoon and evening sessions.

Mrs. Gaze presented the report of the Courtesy Committee, expressing gratitude to all who in any way helped to make the meeting a success.

The Benediction by Mrs. (Rev.) McCabe brought a very impressive and inspiring meeting to a close.

Discuss Latest Ills Wheat Trade

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, (CP)—Ghosts of past wheat talks will lurk in the background when the United Nations wheat conference opens at Geneva Oct. 26 to discuss the latest ills of this major world trading commodity.

Those of the 80 invited countries electing to attend will be concerned with a 50-year-old problem. Still sought is machinery effectively stabilizing a cereal crop whose abundance exceeds effective demand.

The variety of systems evolved at previous conferences have either failed to draw support from certain important wheat countries, or been frustrated by other events before implementation.

Wheat's feast-and-famine record during the 20th century had been influenced by the opening of virgin farm lands in Canada, Argentina and Australia before 1914. Two world wars' drought and high-cost wheat production in European importing countries have all left their marks.

REVIEW IWA

This UN conference is expected first to review and discuss the present three-year International Wheat Agreement which expires July 31, 1956. There are 48 member countries, incluuding the Vatican.

After the broad principles have been covered pro and con, a second conference is anticipated, perhaps early next year. This would be charged with the contentious problem of nailing down prices and qualities in any new agreement.

Today's surplus-laden situation—the four biggest exporting countries are estimated to have a total carryover of nearly 2,400,000,000 bushels-rings a bell from the past.

Outbreak of the First World War relieved imminent supluses and boosted North American output.

The ensuing peace saw European nations step up their own production despite abundant supplies of better quality and more economical wheat overseas.

Exports fell and carryovers rose to about 1,000,000,000 bushels in Canada, Australia, Argentina and the United States by 1933. The next year, these countries agreed in principle with the provisions of the first International Wheat Agreement to an acreage reduction of 15 per cent.

WAR ENDS PLAN

The North American drought and a bad Australian crop intervened. Again in 1938, plans were afoot for a second agreement incorporating acreage cuts, export quotas and an "ever-normal granary" governed by minimum and maximum stocks.

The Second World War ended that. The next step was the Washington inter-Allied conference convened at the request of the United Kingdom in 1941. Envisaged were tighter forms of the regulations previously favored, but the U.K. the world's largest importer, stuck at the prices clause.

In 1942, an international wheat council was established. Agreement in principle was reached on acreage restrictions, export quotas, minimum and maximum carryovers and a minimum export price-all to come into force at the end of the war.

This was frustrated by the world cereals shortage and a fresh start was made in 1947 at London.

Nations gathered in an atmosphere of bread rationing. Rice was in short supply. With Argentina abstaining, a multilateral bulk contract was worked out. Exporters agreed to make available fixed amounts of wheat and flour at or below a maximum price. Importers agreed to purchase their quotas at or above a minimum price.

FOUR-YEAR PACT

Another International wheat council was established to keep the records and act as arbiter.

An agreement on these lines was signed in 1949, to 10' for four years.

During that time, IWA prices remained below fre market levels, but exporters' carryovers grew. When a successor was being negotiated in 1953, Britain decided to stay out, refusing to agree to a maximum price of $2.05 a bushel asked by the exporters under United States pressure.

Italy and Sweden subsequently refused to ratify the agreement, although Italy has since returned. IWA trade has lagged.

Against this background, most observers here expect the Geneva talks to raise some plain speaking before the way is cleared for getting on with provisions of a new agreement—and acreage restrictions may play an important part.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND IN "THAT LADY" IN CINEMASCOPE

An enigma found in the footnotes of history has provided the basis for a best-selling novel, a stage play and now a Cinema Scope production surrounding the romance of an unfortunate pair that loved "not wisely but too well." The offering of "That Lady" opening tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre is by far the most colorfully authenticated version of the trio, spectacularly cast against a tapestry of actual 16th century edifices and locales. The Atalanta Production, released by Twentieth Century-Fox, stars Olivia de Havilland, Gilbert Roland, Paul Scofield, Francoise Rosay and Dennis Price in a screen adaptation of the Kate O'Brien book by Anthony Veiller and Sy Bartlett. Sy Bartlett also produced the color film printed by Technicolor. All put together, the film succeeds in being one of the most provocative dramas of the current cinematic season.

The film's love story recounts a notorious love affair of a high-born lady of the 16th century and its effects on a sanctimonious court ruled by the fanatic, Philip II of Spain. Olivia de Havilland takes on the role essayed on the stage by Katharine Cornell as the Princess of Eboli, all powerful at court as the king's favourite and widow of the king's best friend. At Philip's request she reluctantly agrees to help better his prime minister's social acceptance at court by her recognition. The meeting of these two incendiates a romance that flames to self-destructive force with Philip himself finalizing the condemnation of the princess now openly referred to as "That Lady." It is the monarch's callous meting out of punishment for love, especially concerning one so favored, that has teased bewildered generations of historians and which heightens the drama of the current production.

Miss de Havilland, provocatively beautiful wearing the black eye-patch characteristic of the princess to conceal the result of a youthful duel, brings to the role the intelligence and sympathy that have characterized her other earlier delineations of "unusual" women including Melanie of "Gone With the Wind," "The Heiress" and "My Cousin Rachel." Gilbert Roland is dashing, flamboyant as the career-minded commoner who falls into the trap of love. Philip is portrayed by film newcomer Paul Scofield who should presently find himself lured to Hollywood as the result of his electrifying performance as the frustrated monarch. Mr. Scofield has heretofore contented himself with London stage appearance before joining the "That Lady" company in Spain.

"That Lady" also brings back a welcome appearance of Francoise Rosay, famed French character actress in the role of the duenna and that of Dennis Price as one of the more polished varieties of screen menace.

The period itself of medieval struggle and feudal splendor when Spain was in its glory offers a magnificent canvas for CinemaScope effects with its castles, churches, bullfight arenas dotting its celebrated amber-hued terrain. The film has much to delight the eye and much to bemuse the mind.

Charles P. Boyle receives credit for the film's spectacular cinematography.

AUDIE MURPHY, IN "THE CIMARRON KID"

One of those exciting, suspense-laden Technicolor Westerns, Universal-International's "The Cimarron Kid," starring Audie Murphy and Yvette Dugay and backed with a splendid supporting cast, opens tomorrow at the Star Theatre.

From the opening to final fade-out, this picture contains all of the ingredients necessary to a successful action film. The old West is its setting and gunplay, breathtaking horsemanship, suspense and movement, together with a nice dash of romance, stamp it as one of the best.

The story concerns the release from prison of the Cimarron Kid, played by Audie Murphy, his joining of the notorious Dalton Gang through no choice of his own and the gang's subsequent failure in a series of attempted bank robberies. A poignant and tragic love affair between the Kid and the daughter of a rancher, played by Beverly Tyler, runs through the story.

Interwoven through the plot runs another romance, featuring a member of the gang, played by James Best, and Cimarron Rose, a role handled in telling fashion by a new Universal-International discovery, Yvette Dugay.

Audie Murphy displays acting ability of a high order in this film and a new-found maturity as an actor. Beverly Tyler, newly signed by the studio, acquits herself beautifully as Audie's sweetheart. Miss Dugay is certain star material, judging from her ability in her Cimarron Rose portrayal, and supporting players Leif Erickson as the law enforcing officer David Wolfe as a railroad detective and James Best as a gang member give excellent performances.

Budd Boetticher directed for Producer Ted Richmond and deserves much credit for the swiftly paced, highly-dramatic action film.

Outsanding musical score for "The Cimarron Kid" was supervised by Joseph Gershenson and

Regains Possession Of Selkirk's Bell

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—The cathedral city of St. Boniface has regained possession of Lord Selkirk's bell—the first on the Prairies to call worshippers to prayer.

The 100-pound bell, which was badly broken, unused and unheralded in a church basement from 1868 to 1937, now rests in the museum section of the St. Boniface city hall.

It was cast and blessed in London in 1819 and came to the Prairies in 1840 when Lord Selkirk gave it to Fatheis Provencher and Dumoulin, who had earlier established the first Roman Catholic church in the Red River region. It was sent from Montreal with a set of three bells to the St. Francis-Xavier church.

LOST IN STORM

It rang in St. Francis-Xavier from 1840 to 1868, but no one knew it was Selkirk's bell. Then a tremendous storm swept the Red River settlement and the bell was lost for 60 years.

It had crashed from the steeple of the tiny oak Roman Catholic church and cracked as it fell. It lay outside for years, neglected and unknown. New churches were built, new bells installed, but the derelict was forgotten. Then someone had it stored in the basement of the church.

No one heard of it again until Manitoba historian Margaret Arnett discovered it in the dust-covered basement in 1937. Later it was added to the collection of bells in the Hudson's Bay House.

Recently St. Boniface civic officers saw it and requested it for their city museum.

Lord Selkirk gave the bells to the Roman Catholic priests in Montreal after he returned from his Red River settlement. He never once heard it ring. He died a sick man in southern France in 1820. A stone memorial now is being erected to him in the city.

Murder in Haiti

by John W. Vandercook

Distributed by NEA Service, Inc. Copyright 1955 by John W. Vandercook

THE STORY: Three sinister incidents have marred the voyage of the Vittoria, owned by Viggo Sand, into the Carribbean. Now Bertram Lynch and his partner Robert Deane learn they are seeking a cache of gold bullion secreted in Haiti by a Nazi submarine in the closing days of World War II.

* * *

XIII

AT about four one of the natty sailors sought me out and handed me a folded paper. It was the report on the disappearance of the seaman during the Atlantic crossing which Lynch had demanded from Captain Carey. We went to Lynch's cabin to read it.

The report he had drawn up was clear, crisp, factual. Able Seaman Friedrich Brunke of Stuttgart, Germany, 46 years old, had been assigned to forepeak lookout on the eight to midnight watch on the evening of June 16. That station, Carey explained, was not usually occupied but the night was stormy and there was a fog. It was Brunke's duty to report to the bridge before going forward.

When he did not appear the officer of the watch phoned down from the chartroom to inquire what had become of him. It was learned that Brunke had left the crew's quarters some 20 minutes before eight. He had said something to one of his companions about going on deck for a smoke

Friedrich Brunke was never seen again.

He had been with the yacht for four years and was believed to be devoted to Mr. Sand and to Mr. Sand's interests.

Carey admitted frankly that any one of a dozen men might have slipped unnoticed after Brunke; tipped him overboard and then returned to his quarters, with no one being aware of it. There was no evidence however, that anyone had any trace of motive for such an act.

As to the "ladies and gentlemen" as the Captain described them, only Miss Wyndam, Mr. Braun and Mr. Sand were at dinner below. The Vittoria had been pitching and rolling rather heavily for landsmen's taste and the rest had begged off.

Lynch and I regarded each other thoughtfully.

"At least Sand has decided to give us some cooperation."

"How come?"

"I don't imagine Carey would have obligingly written this all out for us without checking first with Sand. If Sand had disapproved it would have given Carey the greatest pleasure to direct us to the devil."

"When you sprung this this morning, was that pure clairvoyance?"

"Not at all! Last night I counted the crew list Carey showed us in his cabin. Since we had taken him by surprise, it was evidently the master list. I then counted the supposed copy he gave me in the lounge this morning. It was one short." That confirmed, I thought, the information we had in London.

* * *

ALL this time Meer, ignored, had been standing in the middle of the room, holding hands with himself, putting them in his pockets, taking them out of his pockets.

"I thought you might be interested," blandly remarked Sand in the understatement of the year, "in knowing something further of our plans. Captain Carey tells me we will reach our destination—" he glanced at a paper-thin, carved gold watch on his big wrist—"in about 50 hours. Herr Meer—" he pointed to the young German without looking at him—"will show you the position on a map."

Stiffly and with a kind of grudging slowness in his movements Meer stepped to a big blood-wood desk in a corner and began to flatten with his hands a roll of stiff white paper which lay on it. Lynch and I joined him and looked over his shoulders.

"A United States Navy Hydrographic Office chart of Haiti," Meer needlessly informed us. "You will, sirs, notice, of the so-called Windward Passage."

Meer put a finger on the northernmost tip of the great west-jutting peninsula of the island.

"This," said the German with an air of cold detachment, "is the Mole St. Nicholas. An anchorage there is here of a great excellency. It is known only to myself."

"Isn't that rather extraordinary?" Lynch inquired.

"It is an extraordinary anchorage!"

WITH the knuckles of his right hand Meer then tapped the chart, taking in an area of a couple of hundred square miles.

"The cases are here."

"How many?" Lynch barked.

"Twenty," Meer had answered without thinking. He frowned with annoyance, then seemed to decide that the information was not after all of great consequence

Lynch looked at the ceiling. "Let's see. That works out at about 220 pounds a case. Allowing for the weight of the chests themselves, say about 250 pounds apiece."

Meer grudgingly nodded.

"Remarkable thing about gold," observed Lynch conversationally. "The average layman is too apt to exaggerate its value. These days when we don't see much of it, many a bank robber makes the mistake of imagining that if he could fill his pockets, he would walk off a millionaire. Fact is, one pound avcirdupois of pure gold is only worth about $615."

Drunk Driving Case

The trial of a young man from South Brook who was arrested for alleged drunk driving here on Wednesday afternoon, occupied the attention of Magst. Abbott in court Friday. With Corporal Jack Clarke conducting the prosecution and Mr. Stedman Inder appearing as counsel for the accused man. From the evidence given for the crown it appeared that on Wednesday afternoon the RCMP received a complaint to the effect that a drunk driver had travelled up Botwood Highway and was on the premises of the Grand Falls Motors on Station Road. Corp.. Clarke and "Constable Lively hurried to Grand Falls Motors, where they took the accused man into custody for, what they believed to be drunk driving. Four witnesses appeared today for the crown, Messrs. Jack Pretty of Bishops Falls, Thos. J. Power and S M. Christain of Grand Falls, and Const. Lively of the RCMP. It was disclosed during the proceedings that the accused man was not driving his own car at the time of the arrest on Wednesday afternoon, but, was operating a vehicle owned by Mr. P. May of Badger. The case was adjourned at noon hour Thursday and Friday afternoon, argument was heard between Corp. Jack Clarke for the crown and Mr. Stedman Inder counsel for the accused man.

Corporal Clarke, reminded the court that the defendent had a previous conviction for drunk driving in 1950, and he requested an increased penalty in this instance. Magistrate Abbott, in reviewing the evidence. deplored the increasing number of drunk drivers in Central Newfoundland and reminded the defendent, that the pitfalls of drunk driving are many and terrible in nature.

The man was sentenced to serve 21 days in prison at Grand Falls. Had his drivers licence canceled for one year, his liquor permit cancelled indefinitely, and ordered to pay costs in the amount of $38.50.

Airlift Prisoners

An RCMP aircraft from St. John's, with Corporal Fletcher, arrived at Rushy Pond recently for the purpose of "airlifting" two persons to St. John's. One of these is a man from Dildo who has been sentenced to serve 3 months in the Penitentiary for a robbery perpetrated last week on the Deer Laks highway. The other person is a young girl from this area who has been committed to the Girls' Home in St. John's as the result of delinquent behaviour.

Coal Cargo

The steamer Storfield arrived at Botwood on Monday with 3450 tons of coal or the A.N.D. Coy from Newport News, Va. The steamer encountered rough weather when off Cape Bonavista and turned back towards St. John's, and when the storm abated she continued on to Botwood arriving there Monday afternoon. Ship is under the command of Capt. Fondevik, and will load newsprint for American Ports.

The Canadian steamer Aherne which brought Labrador wood to Botwood last weekend left Botwood for Labrador again on Saturday, but when near Exploits had to return to Botwood owing to stormy weather conditions. The boat will bring more Labrador wood to Botwood.

Community Concerts

The rebirth of community concert programmes made a very favourable impression in Grand Falls last Thursday night, when the talented Czechoslovakian singer, Yan Rubes, performed to a crowded hall, which expressed particular warmth and enthusiasm for the renditions of Mr. Rubes and his accompanist, Mr. MacIntyre.

The appearance of Mr. Rubes marks the first concerted effort to revive community concerts in Grand Falls, and the ability and quality of this artist's personality provided the necessary stimulus to extend the strength of local interest in the Community Concerts programme in Central Newfoundland.

Following the performance, Mr. Rubes and his accompanist were entertained at the home of Mrs. S. M. Christian, an executive member of the local branch of the Community Concerts Association. Present for the occasion were members of the executive; the President, Mr. W. T. Howell, and his wife; the Past President, Dr. F. A. Minshull, and Mrs. Minshull, and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Neal.

Married In Saskatchewan

From Grenfell, Saskatchewan, we are advised that the marriage was solemnized there last Thursday afternoon of Michael Feniak, RCAF, and Miss Evelyn June, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lane of First Avenue, Grand Falls.

The ceremony was performed in St. Michael and All Angels Church at Grenfell, and a very enjoyable reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. Miss Lane is a graduate of Grand Falls High School, and was for some time employed at the Avalon Telephone Company in Grand Falls, and later at Gander Airport. Last year she enlisted in the Women's Division of the RCAF at Clinton, Ont., and soon after enlistment was transferred to a unit in Saskatchewan. The groom is a Leading Aircraftsman with the RCAF and his home is at Grenfell Sask. He is of Lithuanian extraction, and the wedding celebration was conducted with all the pomp and tradition of that Republican country on the Baltic Sea. Mr. and Mrs. Lane of Grand Falls have cabled their best wishes to the newlyweds.

Water Survey

We were advised Friday afternoon that the survey for the water and sewerage system for the Municipality of Windsor is nearing completion, and with favourable weather it should be completed within the next two weeks. Mr. Geo. O'Keefe who is in charge of the survey for the Engineering Dept. of the Dept. of Municipal Affairs, advised us this afternoon that the greater portion of this survey has been finished and sent to the Department of Municipal Affairs at St. John's, who will now examine the plan of the survey and then design a pattern, or system, for the installation. When this system has been designed, the Department will then endeavour to estimate the cost for such an installation for the town of Windsor. The present survey began about the latter part of May and todate has accomplished excellent work under Mr. O'Keefe's supervision.

Mr. Humphries went to Corner Brook on Tuesday.

Kinsmen Take Over Air Cadets

The Bishop's Falls Kinsmen have now taken over the sponsorship of the local Air Cadet Squadron, and its new officer personnel is as follows: Commanding Officer, N. R. Wright; Adjutant, Bert Petrie; Instructors, Everett Goobie and Norman Head.

Since taking over this Squadron the Kinsmen have added 38 more lads to its ranks, bringing the present strength up to 71. As the drill hall is now occupied to its capacity, no new recruits are to be accepted for the present, apart from those to be inducted at the next meeting. The age requirements are 14 to 18. The Kinsmen wish to express their gratitude and thanks to Mr. Eric Taylor, Bert Bouzanne and the other Grand Falls officers who helped to set up the Squadron in Bishop's Falls by attending the first parade.

Drunken Boy

Officers of the RCMP were called to Bishop's Falls last Thursday night, where they found a young man from Bridgeport, N.D.B., in a very inebriated condition on the premises of the CNR. He was placed in the police cells at Grand Falls, and in court Friday morning stated he was employed as a logger in Bishop's Falls. He stated he was 19 years of age, and had purchased six bottles of beer at the King's Arms Tavern, Bishop's Falls. The young man was fined $2 for being intoxicated in a public place and $20 for visiting a tavern while under age.

Telephone System

Botwood will have a public telephone system by the end of this month, according to the head of Avalon Telephone Company in St. John's.

S. H. Morris said that there will be a "Central Newfoundland" telephone directory in 1956, and that it will include telephone listings for Botwood, Bishop's Falls, Grand Falls, and Windsor.

Currently here lining up advertising for the new directory which will be published shortly is Ron Pumphrey, of Boone Advertising Limited, St. John's.

Mr. Pumphrey will be going to Badger, in addition to the aforementioned towns, for advertising.

He said that there will be an increase in telephone directory advertising this year, due to an increased awareness on the part of business in general to pay more particular attention to advertising.

Larceny Charge

On Monday a 25-year-old resident of Dildo 1 B., was convicted in Grand Falls court for the larceny of a car radio and horn from a vehicle owned by Wm. Fancey of Bishops Falls The accused was a taxi driver for Mr. Fancey and was enroute to Corner Brook when the vehicle broke down near Deer Lake. the driver removed the radio and horn allegedly to sell. He was taken into custody by the police after giving evidence in another case before Magistrate Abbott on Monday. He was then remanded to Grand Falls prison pending sentence by Magt B. J. Abbott.

Prenatal Clinic For Fathers

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—When the great day comes one group of expectant fathers here will be relaxed. At least, that's the hope of Dr. J. N. R. Scatliff, medical director at St. Boniface Hospital who is conducting a prenatal clinic for fathers. It operates in conjunction with courses for expectant mothers at the city's health unit.

The father is entitled to know more about childbirth, Dr. Scatliff says. He can be an asset if properly informed.

"The father can play a very important role by helping his wife to relax at the onset of labor. If he gets frightened, his fear might communicate itself to the mother and that's a most undesirable situation."

About 28 couples are attending the clinic and the numbers are increasing. And father learns about post-natal care of the baby and the wife, too. He's going to make sure, Dr. Scatliff says, that his wife takes proper care of herself after the birth, and is going to demand a share in caring for the infant.

"All you have to do is show them that the workings of the human body are more interesting than those of a motor car. They carry on from there."

KEEPS LONGER

White flour keeps longer than graham flour because graham flour is a whole-wheat flour and therefore contains the wheat germ. The wheat germ contains fat, and, in time, fat will become rancid.

Our secrets on the pla of trump contracts continues with a new wrinkle in ruffing tricks: The time to take a ruffing trick is when it will do you the most good. Let's see how this is illustrated in today's hand.

West opens the jack of hearts, dummy puts up the queen, and East covers with the king. South is disappointed, since he hoped that the queen of hearts would hold the trick. South controls his emotions enough to refuse the first trick. This allows South to choose the exact moment for ruffing a heart in dummy.

East returns the queen of spades, and South wins with the ace South follows with the king of spades. Only one ruff is needed in dummy, so South can afford to draw two of dummy's three trumps.

It is still too early to ruff the heart. First South takes dummy's top clubs and ruffs a low club in his hand. Declarer was hoping that the suit would break 3-3, but he can cope with the actual 4-2 club break.

Only after ruffing the third round of clubs in his own hand can South afford to ruff a heart in the dummy. First of course, he cashes the ace of hearts. Then he ruffs his last heart in the dummy. Not only does this provide the ruffing trick, but it also gets him to dummy in time to ruff another club.

The second ruff establishes dummy's last club. South can lead a diamond to dummy's ace to lead the last club from dummy. If East discards, the club gives declarer his contract; and if East ruffs, South's last trump is his tenth trick.

If South took the ace of hearts at the first trick and returned the suit, East could lead a third heart at once. This would force dummy to ruff before the clubs had been well begun, and declarer would be unable to establish dummy's last club.

Death Of The Cafe De Paris

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS (NEA)—There's a Cafe de Paris in practically every capital of the world. But none can boast the glamor nor the exalted patronage as the original Cafe de Paris, which has just closed its doors.

Here, for close to 80 years, the world's most famous people dined and wined, and old Parisians mourn the passing of what to them was a temple dedicated to the cult of beautiful women and the art of fine eating.

Both these cults were illustrated on the walls of the restaurant and private rooms on the first floor. One of the niches contained the statue of a nude woman sitting atop a terrestrial globe bearing the inscription: "Woman leads the World." Paintings of Diana the Huntress and other goddesses showed a fine appreciation of the female form.

Outwardly there was nothing to attract the attention of the uniniated. No neon lights. Heavy old-fashioned curtains ensured the privacy of the diners. A doorman greeted you with the suavity of an ambassador.

WILL ITS ELEGANT CUSTOMERS dined on elegant cuisine, Cafe de Paris provided them with "gay nineties" atmosphere in decor and in can-can dances like the one performed here.

Since it closed a little old lady has been seen haunting what had once been the No. 1 cafe of Paris.

"You see, I spent 57 years of my life as cashier in this atmosphere, and soon I will be 90. So, until the very last moment, I come here every afternoon," she said.

Times have indeed changed, the first little ghost recalled. "When I first came here, gentlemen were so gallant, so courteous, and women indeed led the world."

She only had to close her eyes to see King Edward VII of England sitting in his favorite corner "over there," opposite to the one reserved for the dashing Russian Grand Dukes. Other distinguished habitues were the Aga Khan—then a slender, handsome young prince; the Marquis de Castellane, first French aristocrat to marry an American millionairess, as well as hosts of beautiful women social leaders, actresses and demi-mondaines.

Most clients had their favorite tables and many reserved them from one year's end to another. All came to see and be seen, but also to appreciate the superb cuisine which the Cafe de Paris dispensed—at a price.

So far as the little old lady was concerned, the Great Epoch went out with the first World War. When she saw clients arriving for dinner in 1919 wearing business suits instead of the white tie and tails, she knew it was the end.

The Cafe de Paris was the third of its name. The first opened in 1822 just a stone's throw from the church of the Madeleine. HeNre among the celebrities Alexandre Dumas and Balzac dined every evening. It soon became an institution as well as the rendezvous of the dandies.

Some 30 years later a second Cafe de Paris opened farther down beyond the Opera, but its success was short-lived. In 1879 the third opened its doors on the Avenue de l'Opera, to receive the illustrious visitors to the Paris exhibition.

Entirely redecorated in 1898, it retained its "tormented moderne style" until it closed. The Cafe de Paris was then known as the favorite restaurant of the gourmets among the crowned heads of Europe and international aristocrats—until the fateful Aug. 2, 1914, which, according to some historians ,marked the end of the 19th Century.

The end of the first World War saw an entirely different clientele—bankers, business men, and political leaders. They replaced the wealthy idlers, by then a completely defunct social class.

But they, too were accompanied by beautiful women and famous actresses. Sarah Bernhardt would often sup there after the theatre. For the great singer, Nellie Melba, the chef of the Cafe de Paris invented the now universally known dessert, "peche melba."

The Cafe de Paris prospered between the two World Wars. After Paris was liberated it took four years to get back to its old standards of exquisite cooking. Its prestige was still as great. Whereas dressing for dinner was no longer a "must", everyone wore at least black tie for the Friday evening dinners.

Otherwise nothing was changed. The King of Yugoslavia, the Duke of Windsor and the Aga Khan came, ordered their favorite dishes and nodded to the old cashier. Can-can dances contributed to the "gay nineties" atmosphere.

This last stronghold of Parisian traditions disappeared evernight. Clients returning from their vacation still telephone to make a reservation. But it won't be long now when even the old telephone operator will have to abandon her switchboard.

There will be no more "peche melba." The Cafe de Paris is being turned into a bank.

MODEST FRONT OF CAFE DE PARIS belied its role as rendezvous for the celebrated. Now shuttered, it will become a bank.

Hollywood Today

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Audrey Hepburn is miffed by printed reports that Mel Ferrer is straw-bossing her career. She denies that hubby Ferrer insisted on okaying all actors hired to work with her in "War and Peace" and that still photographers on the set could not snap her without clearing through him first. "It's a happy partnership—not a master and a slave relationship," fumes Audrey.

Deborah Kerr, who starred in the stage play, is beaming over Robert Anderson's script for her MGM movie version of "Tea and Sympathy." Despite mighty whacks by film censors she says "it's a remarkable piece of work" by Anderson who also authored the play.

"He's developing his own theme even further," she says. "The script is as good as his play."

Deborah, winding up in "The Proud and Profane," is playing cautious as candidate No. 1 for "Mrs. A," the life story of the Gertrude Lawrence. "I'd like to see the script first," she says. "I want to be sure it isn't one of those 'This is Your Life' things."

THE WITNET: A Movietown beauty telephoned a movie fur designer to whip up a black mist mink coat for her in a hurry. When he asked if she preferred it full-length or seven-eighths length, she snapped:

"Now can't you burn the library down?" winked a city father to Producer Julian Blaustein. "We need a new one."

"No thanks," said Julian. "Libraries burn cheaper in Hollywood."

Fans Help Spastic Children

Fan clubs are legion amongst the devoted followers of film stars crooners and other celebrities, but now one has been started for a BBC programme, the Show Band. The club started at the instigation of a young enthusiast called Ann Bluestone, and will be different from all others in that its funds will be almost entirely devoted to a good cause, that of the Stars' organization for Spastic Children, of which Stapleton himself is a committee member.

Miss Bluestone, who is an ardent supporter of Stapleton, the "golden-haired boy of Show Business," and the members of what she and other fans consider to be the greatest band in Britain today, says that the club will also extend its admiration to the Stargazers and other featured artists.

The Cyril Stapleton and Show Band Club, to give it its full title, will have a quarterly magazine devoted to the band and its featured artists with, it is hoped, signed articles contributed by the objects of this organized adulation, and photographs of its idols, printed from negatives kindly loaned by the BBC.

There will also be a monthly newsletter and, greatest inducement of all, tickets when they are available for Show Band broadcasts given before an audience. It is only three years since the BBC Show Band was formed but it has indeed a great following and it is hoped that a large number of its devoted admirers will join the fan club and so benefit spastic children.

Rotary Meeting

The St. John's Rotary Club were privileged to have as their guest speaker last Thursday, Mr. Al. Vardy, Director of Tourist Development.

Mr. Vardy was introduced by Mr. Ern Clouston who paid tribute to Mr. Vardy's great interest in the Rotary Club and the help which he has always given, especially in activities such as the Radio Auction.

Mr. Vardy, in opening his address, pointed out that many people feel that with tourist development all that is necessary is to invite visitors to come and they will flock to Newfoundland. This is obviously most incorrect and, in fact, a great deal of intensive advertising must be done. The Tourist Development Board is now preparing the ground work for the time when Newfoundland will be in a position to cater to tourists on a large scale.

Mr. Vardy said that the Tourist Development Board has, amongst many tasks, a particularly important one which is to break down the many erroneous impressions of Newgoundland and to get across to prospective visitors something about the island—its literature, its culture, as well as advertising the many attractions such as boating, hunting and fishing. With this end in view, the Board is busy preparing a film library of pictures showing the many attractions of Newfoundland. He drew special attention to a new colour film called "Sailing Newfoundland Waters" which has been particularly well received on the mainland. At present, the Board is not actually inviting tourists to come to Newfoundland because the facilities are not yet here. However, next year it is planned to put an Information Officer on the "William Carson" when she is operating between North Sydney and Port aux Basques. The duty of this officer will be to inform tourists what they will find in Newfoundland so that they will start their visit to the Island under the best possible circumstances.

The Tourist Development Loan Board has already loaned out five to six hundred thousand dollars to motel and tourist cabin operators who matched dollar for dollar, and, in fact, in many instances put up more than fifty percent. To date there is at least a million to a million and a half dollars already invested in real estate for the tourist trade.

Mr. Vardy said that he was very disappointed that not enough attention has been given to our history, especially to Cabot's discovery of Newfoundland. In this connection, he paid tribute to the Newfoundland Association of Montreal who combined with the Italian portion of the population in celebrating John Cabot Day last June and persuaded the City of Montreal to change Atwater Square to Cabot Square. In this square there is a statue of John Cabot. Mr. Vardy said that he would like to see a huge statue at Cape Bonavista, marking the famous landfall of Cabot—a statue so large that it would be a land mark for everyone to see.

Mr. Vardy felt that historical societies and other groups should devote more of their energies to making our history live for the people and that those who have gone before may still share in the shaping of Newfoundland's future.

Mr. Vardy's talk was extremely well received by the Club and it was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The following visiting Rotarians were present: Ralph Loomer, Windsor, N.S.; Tom Croston, Montreal; Edwin T. Morgan, Rockport, Mass., U.S.A. Guests of members were Professor Norman Brown, Harry W. Bell, Max Andrews, C. B. Neapole, Col. Alex Ross, Allan Kenty, T. A. Fishbourne.

Tin Flowers, Her Hobby

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. Roy Bier laid out her precision-made dental pliers and scissors and added some dental powder. Then she brought out her tin cans.

This might sound like an unusual combination, but for Mrs. Bier the dental equipment and tin cans are tools and material for a fascinating hobby.

The hobby started by accident about six years ago, when she dropped a flower knick-knack in her home and chipped it. She wanted to repair the broken ornament and as she picked it up she tapped it with her finger.

DELICATE WORK

The "clink" she heard sounded just like tin, and that tiny clink started her on a hobby which has since been displayed at gatherings across Canada.

Now the cheerful, grey-haired housewife is making her own extremely natural-like flower knick-knacks and she has enough of them to twice cover the top of her dining room table.

Of course, when she began her botanical production in 1949 she had to go through a rough-edged experimental stage. In order to shape her pigmy tin figures she used clumsy pliers from the cellar workshop and sewing scissors.

Then her husband, an oral dental surgeon, came to her aid.

Because the tin can flower-making needed precision tools, Dr. Roy Bier brought his wife dental scissors and pliers.

On the suggestion of another dentist, Mrs. Bier had her husband bring home some dental powder which she spreads over the tin to give it a Coalport-like finish.

"I think it's a crazy idea but it's pretty," she said, spreading her handiwork gently across the table.

MAID FROM NAILS

The stems of the flowers are made from ordinary nails—short, long, bent and straight. The stamens, pistils, petals and leaves may have come from some worn-out tomato juice can.

The outstanding part of the hobby is the painting of the flowers. Mrs. Bier, who comes from a family of artists and who is a proficient artist herself, takes great pain and pride in her painting.

"I paint from Nature," she said. "The color blends on my tin flowers are those I find in my own garden."

Mrs. Bier has no intention of making her hobby a full-time proposition.

Tubeless Tire For Snow And Ice

First silent-running snow and ice tire that is tubless is being introduced this month across Canada by dealers and stores of The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company of Canada Ltd. It will provide motorists with increased winter driving safety and will run smoothly on dry pavements. The unique tread design of the new Firestone time virtually elimates tire whine common to most other winter tires. The new Town and Country tubeless tire also in available with either black or white sidewalls.

Because the tire is tubeless, it provides greater protection against punctures and blowouts than do tires with tubes. Elimination of the inner tube also results in a lighter-weight tire and wheel assembly to give a more comfortable ride and longer time mileage.

The new tire has a long-wearing non-skid tread with excellent gripping action in loose and hard-packed snow, on ice and in mud. Hundreds of cross grooves in the tread ribs provide added flexibility an closer contact to the road surface, assuring maximum traction for safe stops and starts.

The special tread design also has hundreds of angular edges that resist side-skidding and assure stops without swerves or skids.

A continuous tread design formed by the interlocking tread bars gives the Town & Country a quietness and soothness of operation and eliminates the vibration, rumble, and whine common in some winter tires. The wide, flat tread also provides longer mileage than other winter-type tires.

A rubber curb guard protects the white sidewalls of Town and Country tires from scuffing.

Hair dye has been used since the earliest times, when it was common among savage tribes.
